Ford's Something Ahead. 30,000,000 in 30 Years. A Trust in Himself. Gen. Motors, Steel, Dupont

—By Arthur Brisbane—

Copyright, 1927, by Star Company

HAPPY THE MAN with "something else and something bigger to do." Henry Ford told Detroit reporters on his sixty-fourth birthday "the biggest job of my life is ahead."

The word "ahead" is what counts. When everything is behind them, men wither and die at the top, as the trees do.

The big job ahead to which Ford alludes is making automobiles in less than nineteen years Henry Ford has built 15,000,000 automobiles of his "model T" type. His new job is to build 15,000,000 automobiles of a different, better kind, in much less than nineteen years.

Mr. Ford says he doesn't want to take business from any other concern. Unless every man building a good car is prosperous the industry is on a wrong basis. Mr. Ford wants to build 15,000,000 more light cars, low in price, faster and more powerful than the old car. He is also working on a 1,000 horse-power air cooled airplane motor to run his new super multiple engine airplane built to carry 100 passengers.

In addition Ford is preparing to put out a new heavy power truck to sell at a low price and haul four tons or more. He is increasing the engine power of his tractor, running his railroad, operating lumber works, coal mines, iron mines, steel works, and does not neglect his big Lincoln car. You might say that at sixty-four years of age, he is busy enough to make life interesting. The busier the better, work means youth.

Our government, as solemn as any that ever locked the barn door a little late, will "quiz" the big steel company, General Motors, and the giant Du Pont de Nemours Company. Government suspects that they are combining. If so, all the better for them and this country. The bigger our business the better the nation can compete with other nations, and the better for the American people.

When business gets bigger, with proper supervision and control by the public, it gains efficiency. If the people haven't brains enough to watch one BIG business, they wouldn't have enough brains to watch and control a hundred little businesses secretly conspiring and conspiring.

Men that build great institutions wisely reduce costs as they build, and serve the public in this period of competition among nations, no longer among individual concerns.

What greater honor could there be than to carry out the

SOME ISSUES JUMP TO NEW RECORD MARK AS SALES NEAR 3,000,000

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—An avalanche of selling orders, inspired by President Coolidge's unexpected announcement that he did not choose to be a candidate in 1928, gave the Stock Market a terrific jolt at the opening today when prices crashed 3 to as much as 10 points, but a sharp rally followed, recovering many of the early losses, and sent about a dozen issues to record high levels.

Trading was on an enormous scale, with indications that the day's sales would run close to 3,000,000 shares.

Wall Street undoubtedly was stunned by the President's decision. It caught the market in a vulnerable position, with railroad and industrial stock averages at a new peak after twenty consecutive days of rising prices, and with brokers' loans around the highest level on record.

ADMIRAL BOWLES DEAD, FAMOUS SHIPBUILDER

Barnstable, Aug. 3—Rear Admiral Francis Tiffany Bowles, retired, one of the foremost naval shipbuilders in the United States, died at his home here today.

A member of the famous Bowles family, his grandfather, Samuel Bowles, having founded the Springfield Republican, he was born in Springfield, Oct. 7, 1858, the son of Benjamin F. and Mary E. (Bailey) Bowles.

Young Bowles graduated from the U. S. Naval Academy in 1879, and with a classmate was sent to Greenwich, England, for postgraduate work in Royal Naval College, the first Americans to study there.

He specialized on naval architecture, and on his return began the work of rebuilding the American Navy. When only 43 he became chief constructor of the Navy under President McKinley and continued under Roosevelt, the youngest man ever to attain that rank.

Rear Admiral Bowles resigned in 1903 to become president of the Fore River Shipbuilding Corporation at Quincy, remaining until it was acquired by the Schwab interests in 1914.

In 1917 he was called to be assistant general manager of the Emergency Fleet Corporation and was charged with the organization of the division of construction.

Admiral Bowles, who married Adelaid H. Savage of Boston in 1886, was chairman of the commission of the Massachusetts Nautical School, president of the Cape Cod Chamber of Commerce, a prime mover in the organization of the Society of Naval Architects and Marine Engineers, and was its first secretary and for four years its president.

ESTELLE'S ILLNESS MAY DELAY DEMPSEY BATTLE

Los Angeles, Aug. 3 (I.N.S.)—The Dempsey-Tunney championship heavyweight fight hinges upon the condition of Estelle Taylor, film actress and wife of the former world champion.

Rumors were in circulation today that Miss Taylor is in a serious condition with an attack of extreme nervousness complicated by arthritis, and it is a question whether she will be able to travel East with Dempsey in two weeks.

Dempsey has declared his intention of taking her with him when he goes East to start training for Tunney. If her condition is still serious at that time, it is a grave question whether he will go through with the fight on the tentative September 22 date.

Miss Taylor's nervous condition is said to have been complicated by worry over her husband's bout with Jack Sharkey, and further aggravated by difficulties arising over her film contracts.

Levine Is Sued on Flight

Paris, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—Maurice Drouhin, French aviator, today began action against Charles A. Levine seeking to compel him to fulfill the terms of their tentative contract signed early in July, when Drouhin was chosen to pilot Levine's monoplane Columbia in a return Atlantic flight from Paris to New York.

"All that Drouhin wants is to have Levine deposit 200,000 francs for Mme. Drouh in in case of his death, as the contract stipulated," one of the flier's friends told the correspondent.

"As far as cash is concerned, there will be plenty of that in case the flight is successful, as Drouhin's contract calls for half the returns from the movies, oil and gas company contributions and other rewards of being a successful air hero."

CAPITAL LEADERS SPLIT ON COOLIDGE'S 'CHOICE'

By GEORGE R. HOLMES,
International News Service Staff Correspondent.

Washington, Aug. 3.—Political candor or political cunning?

As hot a political debate as the country has witnessed in years raged today about President Coolidge's enigmatic declaration that he does not "choose" to run for the presidency next year, with opinion divided sharply as to whether he is displaying political candor or political cunning by his peculiarly-worded statement.

If Mr. Coolidge really means to take himself out of consideration for 1928, he will have to put his intention in more positive words before the hard-boiled politicians in the capital will believe it.

The great majority of Republicans now in Washington are unwilling to scratch his name on the basis of the ten sterling words that emanated from Rapid City yesterday in such dramatic fashion:

"I do not choose to run for President in 1928."

At the same time, it is conceded generally that Mr. Coolidge, by his statement, has let down the bars to a flock of Republican potentialities who will not be slow to take the declaration at its face value, and proceed to build themselves up in the line of succession.

There are several Republican leaders who believe that, whether he intended to or not, the President has removed himself from consideration.

They are, however, in the minority. The majority, whose opinions were sought, viewed the curiously-worded statement with skepticism and attributed to Mr. Coolidge a desire to be "drafted." As they put it:

"If Mr. Coolidge really wanted to eliminate himself from consideration in 1928, he would have said: 'I am not a candidate and will under no circumstances consent to stand again.'

"That is what Theodore Roosevelt

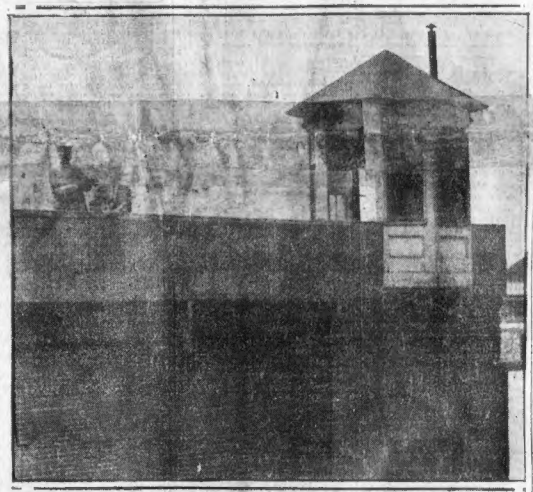
RIOT GUNS GUARD DEATH HOUSE



BEHIND THESE WALLS 3 MEN AWAIT THEIR DOOM

RESPITE FOR SACCO COUNSEL'S HOPE

A "compromise verdict" or a respite—in either case a gift of life to Nicola Sacco and Bartolomeo Vanzetti—is expected from Governor Fuller tonight, defence counsel for the two condemned men declared today, voicing the official opinion of those leading in the fight to save the two men.

By a compromise verdict, Attorney William G. Thompson, chief defense counsel, indicated that he meant the death sentence might be commuted to life imprisonment or that Vanzetti might be freed and Sacco given a life term.

His alternate hope—a respite—was based on the chance that the Governor might postpone the execution until the Legislature meets next January when the State solons would be asked to pass a law making it possible for the Supreme Court to review the evidence in the case.

"I don't think things look so bad," Attorney Thompson said, after he had first tried to forestall questioners with a laughing retort, "Oh, Sacco and Vanzetti are not going to be electrocuted right away."

BERRYPICKER'S BODY FOUND IN BLUE HILLS

After an all-night search the body of Andrew Seaberg, 55, of Don street, Dorchester, was found in the woods of the Blue Hills by Metropolitan police today.

Leuberg died of heart failure, police declared. Medical Examiner Jones of Quincy was notified.

Seaberg left home in the morning bound for the Blue Hills to pick blueberries. When he failed to return last night, Capt. B. J. Costello, in command of the Blue Hills station of the Metropolitan police, was notified, and started a search. Later the Milton police were asked to look for Seaberg.

Thray Capt. Costello organized a squad of Metropolitan officers who began a systematic hunt for the missing man.

FOUR INJURED IN BACK BAY TROLLEY CAR CRASH

Three men are in Haymarket Relief Station and a fourth is in Bay State Hospital, Bay State road, as a result of a rear-end collision of two heavily-loaded Elevated two-car trains at Commonwealth avenue and St Mary's street Back Bay. Several others received a bad shaking up.

Those at the Haymarket Relief Station are Patrick Burke, 59 single, of No. 24 Paris street, East Boston, fractured ribs and contusions; Adolph Boulnois, 35, single, of No. 198 Dartmouth street, South End, injuries to spine and hip; John Cigilo, 32, single, of No. 249 Hapgood street, Athol.

John J. Magrin 26, single, of No. 4 Bay street, Dorchester, is in Bay State Hospital to which he was taken in a passing automobile.

The accident occurred as several crowded street cars were en route from the fights at Braves Field to the subway. According to the police one of the two-car trains stopped suddenly at St Mary's street and the train following crashed into it before the motorman could apply the brakes.

VANZETTI ORDERS NEW FIGHT FOR LIFE IF DEATH IS DECREED

PRISON IS HEAVILY GUARDED

While police kept watch on the prison wall that separates Sacco and Vanzetti—now in the death house—from the outside world, Governor Fuller suddenly called off the scheduled meeting of his executive council today, thereby making his final decision in the case, due tonight, more of a puzzle than ever.

He asked the councillors to meet tomorrow instead and informed them that he was too busy to see them today. He will join them at the meeting tomorrow, he said.

This action was variously interpreted at the State House, while the Governor, who kept to a room in a Back Bay hotel, busily writing his momentous report, refused to explain.

It sealed the doom of the condemned men, in the opinion of some, while others saw in the announcement that the Governor would sit in with the council tomorrow a ray of hope for Sacco and Vanzetti.

Vanzetti again went on a hunger strike today, his third since July 17. He sullkily ignored dinner. Prison officials believe that neither Sacco nor his comrade will eat again before they die—unless given a new lease of life by tonight's decision.

If Governor Fuller decides against the two men, a police squad of fifteen patrolmen and a sergeant will hasten to State Prison as soon as his decision is received at the City square police station.

From 8 o'clock on, reserves will be kept at this station, ready to act in event of an emergency.

Every precaution is being taken to prevent trouble of any kind outside the prison walls.

VISITORS WATCHED

For safety within the walls, prison authorities placed two guards at the main gate with orders to scrutinize carefully all visitors, no matter whom they called to see.

The dramatic statement of Vanzetti, just before he was removed to the death house together with Sacco and Celestino Madeiros, served as an added incentive to increase the protecting guard at the Charlestown institution.

"There's no hope. Mobilize 1,000,000 men," was Vanzetti's appeal to his friends.

Sacco was virtually carried to his death cell and it was feared that Vanzetti would cause trouble. For this reason the transfer was made at night for the first time in many years.

But Vanzetti, in spite of the indication that his hope was gone, slept soundly and breakfast time this morning when he ate dropped eggs on hash, bread and coffee. Sacco on the other hand, was up early and paced, half staggering, back and forth in his cell.

ON DEATH WATCH.

Two prison guards are in the death house with the three condemned prisoners. They sit in front of the three cells which are narrow, each furnished with only a cot, table and water faucet.

Vanzetti, who is farthest from the door to the death chamber, meaning that if all three are to die he will die last, cannot read as in his custom unless the lights are turned on for the skylight casts no light into his cell. Sacco is in the middle cell, next to that of Vanzetti, while Madeiros is in the first cell, nearest the execution room.

Now that they are in the death house, all three can have anything they want to eat, read or smoke except the daily papers telling of the progress of their fight for life. But their meals, however elaborate, must be eaten with wooden spoons for condemned prisoners in the death house are not trusted with knives, forks or metal spoons.

Warden Hendry went to the death house and talked with Sacco, Vanzetti and Madeiros for about an hour.

"Just merely to chat with them," the warden explained. He said he offered to take them fruit or other delicacies if they desired.

A caller at the prison today was the wife of Jerry Geddiun, "Jerry, the Pole," the only occupant now left in the Cherry Hill cell tier known as "Murderers' Row." He is awaiting sentence of death for the murder of Paymaster Rose in the Ward Baking Company robbery in Cambridge.

She said that Sacco and Vanzetti were mentioned during the interview, but that her husband had little to say about them.

MADEIROS DOOMED.

Of the three men, Madeiros alone has no chance of life. His confession—in which he said he had committed the crime for which Sacco and Vanzetti were convicted—prolonged his life but could not save him from the electric chair. He must die the week beginning August 10 for the murder of a Wrentham bank cashier in a hold-up.

Mrs. Sacco visited her husband and Vanzetti in the death house and emerged in a state of near collapse. She carried her hat in her hand and appeared to be suffering extreme anguish as she walked along the wall toward the warden's office, where her wealthy friend, Mrs. Katherine B. Codman, was awaiting her.

"I cannot be interviewed; I don't know if I can stand the strain much longer," she told Deputy Warden James Hogsett.

After she left, dinner was placed before the two men, and Vanzetti surprised the guards by ignoring the meal. Sacco continued his hunger strike.

Just before the transfer to the death house, Vanzetti discussed with his counsel the chances of an appeal to the United States court. He was given a promise that something be done in this respect, if possible, but not until the Governor's decision was known.

Intense excitement was evident at the State House and at the headquarters of the Sacco-Vanzetti defence committee in Hanover street. But this local manifestation was only indicative of the excitement all over the world where millions of persons are awaiting Governor Fuller's pronouncement.

POLICE VIGILANT.

Everywhere police are on the watch for trouble. Labor organizations, consulates and police central bureaus in countless cities of Europe and America have made arrangements to have the decision flashed to them by telegraph and cable the minute it is made public.

The Governor's postponement of the council meeting until tomorrow was a favorable sign in the opinion of the members of the defense committee.

Some of the councillors were already on their way to Boston when the meeting was called off. Others were just preparing to leave their homes.

With the Governor busy with his personal attorney, Joseph H. Wiggin, and two stenographers in a room at his hotel, as sent his secretary, Herman A. MacDonald to the State House to get a mass of data and notes which Wiggin and MacDonald had worked over until a late hour last night.

NOTIFIES COUNCIL.

MacDonald, on arriving at the executive offices, notified Secretary William A. Reed, secretary of the Governor's council, of the Governor's desire to postpone the scheduled meeting. The Governor's message was as follows:

"Tell the members I am going to be extremely busy today and desire that they postpone their meeting until tomorrow. I want to meet with them this week, but I cannot see them today. Therefore, I want them to meet tomorrow."

As Governor Fuller has not made it a practice of sitting in with his council, friends of the condemned men considered that this statement, that he wished to meet with them, meant that he had decided to submit regarding the Sacco-Vanzetti case.

Besides the speculation at the State House and elsewhere, as to the significance of the postponement, there was also considerable guessing as to what the council would do if the Governor recommends clemency.

It is a historical fact that the Executive Council in judge cases is far from being a "rubber stamp" and might disagree with the Governor.

There is little doubt that the Governor's decision will be voluminous and will deal thoroughly with the world-famous case which has been in dispute for seven years.

POLICE RESERVES HELD.

Captain Thomas G. Bligh of the State Police said in answer to questions that, while no special police assignments had been made, the department was prepared for every emergency. No officer is guarding the Governor's family at Rye Beach.

Attorneys Thompson and Ehrmann of the defense were perturbed over the postponement of the council meeting, feeling that it might possibly indicate a postponement of the Governor's decision. On the whole they appeared optimistic and awaited the result with eagerness.

A decision to hold reserves at the Charlestown Police Station tonight and to despatch a squad of police to the prison walls immediately upon receipt of the Governor's findings—if his finding is against the men—was reached by Captain Goff of the Charlestown district after a long conference with Warden Hendry.

The tense atmosphere at the State House was evidenced by the excitement caused just before noon when a bell suddenly began clanging wildly. Girl stenographers, special policemen and others rushed into the corridors. Investigation revealed the watchman's bell had been accidentally sounded during testing of the circuit.

The press gallery of the House of Representatives was converted into a telegraph office, with ten wires for newspapermen, many of whom were on hand from New York and other cities.

PLEA FROM PLYMOUTH.

A plea for Vanzetti was received at the State House from Amy W. Damon, who wired as follows: "I am a member of the Republican State committee of Cape and Plymouth district. Know Vanzetti well. Believe him innocent and that he had an unfair trial."

Prof. Felix Frankfurter of the Harvard Law School, one of the leading Sacco and Vanzetti sympathizers, was in conference with Defense Attorney Thompson for an hour at the latter's office in the Tremont Building. Gardner Jackson of the defense committee also was in conference with Atty. Thompson.

Assistants of Atty Thompson voiced the opinion that the postponement of the council meeting might mean that Governor Fuller had received information or opposition to clemency on the part of the councillors and wished to "give them time to get together and decide to agree to any proposition he might submit."

Malden Rotary Asks Divine Aid for Fuller is Decision

Members of the Malden Rotary Club stood in silent prayer for one minute today, invoking Divine aid for their fellow-townsman, Governor Alvan T. Fuller, in his momentous task of deciding the fate of Sacco and Vanzetti.

The Rev. Charles H. Moss, D.D., former pastor of the First Baptist Church, of Malden, of which Governor Fuller is a member, opened the meeting with an invocation in which he prayed for Governor Fuller and for Divine guidance in his present task.

Madeiros is confined in the cell nearest the execution chamber; Sacco in the middle one and Vanzetti in the third from the fatal door.

State Police Ready for Emergency in Sacco Case

"We are prepared for any emergency," declared Captain Thomas G. Bligh of the State Police today. "We have one man playing with the Governor's children at Rye Beach," the captain added with a smile.

No member of the State police force is on guard at the home of Judge Webster Thayer in Worcester, although it is understood that his residence is under guard of city police. A member of the State police force has been on guard at the executive offices in the State House, but Governor Fuller comes and goes without paying much attention to him.

Mrs. Sacco Admits She's on Verge of Collapse

Mrs. Rose Sacco, wife of Nicola Sacco, appearing as though she was on the verge of collapse and nervously biting her fingernails, visited her husband at the State Prison in an automobile with Mrs. Katherine B. Codman of Boston.

Deputy Warden Hogsett escorted Mrs. Sacco to the death cell. While waiting for the warden, Mrs. Codman talked to the wife of the condemned man in a low tone.

Mrs. Sacco told Deputy Hogsett that she could not stand the strain of the situation much longer.

HEARST IN JULY SAW MELLON AS CHOICE

This interview with William Randolph Hearst was printed in newspapers throughout the country in July:

William Randolph Hearst thinks Andrew W. Mellon, secretary of the Treasury, is the strongest candidate the Republican party could present for the next presidential nomination.

As for President Coolidge, Mr. Hearst says he "is popular and has made a good President," but his opinion regarding another term for Mr. Coolidge is "the people do not care to see one man hold the reins of the chief executive's office so long."

Mr. Hearst also thinks the Democrats would have a good chance for success if they nominated Senator Reed of Missouri for President. But that "Al" Smith as a candidate would be fatal.

MELLON'S GREATNESS.

These views were expressed in a series of interviews at New Orleans, Charleston, Savannah and Jacksonville, while Mr. Hearst touched Southern ports en route to his California ranch. He traveled on his yacht Oneida from New York to New Orleans.

Of Secretary Mellon Mr. Hearst said:

"After all, when you come right down to it, the Republicans have but one thing to brag about, that is the Treasury Department."

Mr. Hearst pointed to what he called "remarkable handling of the debts" and lower taxes. Mr. Mellon was called by him the greatest Secretary of the Treasury since Hamilton.

"The out,' thing against Andrew Mellon," continued Mr. Hearst, "is the fact that he has a lot of money. However, this is pretty much a business country and people have a great deal of respect for his business ability; demagogic prejudices are dying out in the United States and there is not so strong a feeling today against a man simply because he is rich."

PREDICTED COOLIDGE ACT.

Concerning President Coolidge, Mr. Hearst said he believed that when the silent occupant of the White House breaks forth with a declaration of his intention in 1928, it will be the announcement of a decision not to be a candidate.

The only other Republican possibility referred to was Dwight Davies, whom Mr. Hearst described as a "minor Teddy Roosevelt."

"However," Mr. Hearst remarked, "I would not be too quick in forecasting a Republican victory.

"The Republican party missed fire with the World Court and got a slap in the face; they have lost prestige by the disarmament conference, World War veterans have turned away from Coolidge because of his veto on the pension bill and I believe the Democratic party has a real opportunity to win the election this time."

FRIEND OF FULLER SAYS MEN WILL ESCAPE CHAIR

"The Governor does not intend to let Sacco and Vanzetti go to the chair," said an attorney friend of Governor Fuller today when asked if he had any inkling of what action will be taken. He refused to let his name be used but declared that he has been in touch with the Governor many times since the investigation of the case began and was positive that the condemned men would be saved.

Coolidge's Decision Bears Out Hearst July 4 Prophecy

IN a series of interviews given in June and July at New Orleans Charleston, Savannah and Jacksonville, William Randolph Hearst gave his opinion as to the presidential situation and the probabilites for the next campaign.

Concerning President Coolidge Mr. Hearst was quoted as believing strongly that when the silent occupant of the White House broke forth with a declaration of his intentions in 1928 it would be the announcement of a decision not to be a candidate.

On July 4 last, in an interview in New Orleans, William Randolph Hearst made the direct prophecy that President Coolidge would not be a candidate in 1928.

At that time Mr. Hearst said:

"The President is a very astute leader and politician. He knows the depth and force of the tradition handed down by Washington and Jefferson and other great American Presidents, who said two terms were enough. The President knows how hard it will be to break down that precedent; that he would be cried down as the founder of a political oligarchy, whose subsequent leaders might not choose to stop at three terms or four terms, if once they had broken down the tradition of Washington.

"And regardless of what certain leaders might say about a 'second elective' term for Coolidge, the mass of voters would regard it as a third term and not a second term if he ran again in 1928.

"If Coolidge should take the nomination again in 1928, he would not be the hardest Republican for the Democrats to beat.

"The President," Mr. Hearst said, "is popular and has made a good President, but the people do not care to see one man hold the reins of the chief executive's office so long.

"As the election draws near the third term question will become the principal issue of the next campaign, if Coolidge decides to come out again., There is little doubt that he can gain the Republican nomination should he care for it, but he will find the third term a bugaboo to his election.

"Many people say the short term he served in finishing out Harding's term will count for little, but it is breaking down tradition. If he is allowed to go beyond this tradition now others will do so later on and there is no telling where it will end. That is the danger as seen by the voters in my opinion."

Wires Ready to Flash Decision on Sacco

Although Boston is rich in tradition of momentous events, the eyes of the civilized world have never before been centred on Boston as they are today, as the Sacco-Vanzetti decision is awaited in every part of the globe.

Press associations, telephone and telegraph companies, and even the cable companies, whose wires cross the seven seas, have spent a fortune in anticipation of the announcement tonight of Governor Fuller's decision.

The press gallery at the State House has been stirred over with the telegraph, telephone and cable companies. Almost a score of expert operators are already in toto there, waiting to flash the news to the four corners of the world.

A special wire runs from the press gallery to the State Department offices in Washington. If the decision is adverse to Sacco and Vanzetti, the State Department will immediately cable its embassies and consular offices throughout the world, that adequate steps may be taken against possible radical demonstrations.

Every Boston newspaper has a direct wire from its office to the State House. Other newspapers in New York, Philadelphia, Chicago and other large cities have telephone or telegraph wires connecting their editorial offices with the State House.

A small army of newspapermen from other cities are here.

The exact hour when the decision is announced is not yet known, but the fate of Sacco and Vanzetti will be known in Tokio, in Cape Town, in Buenos Aires, in London, Rome and Paris almost as soon as it is known in Boston.

AUTOIST SAVES MAN DYING IN WATER

An alleged drunken driver was the hero of a sensational rescue in Hingham early today when his automobile crashed through a fence on East street, turned over several times and landed bottom-up, in ten feet of water in Ware River.

The hero of the accident, Charles F. Smith, 27, of Fourth Cliff, Humarock, fought his way out of his car, a small coupe, and then saved his companion, John J. Quinn, 21 of No. 32 Lexington street, Somerville.

Three other men who arrived on the scene a few moments later were arrested as they volunteered assistance. One was charged with drunken driving and the others with intoxication.

According to the police, Smith's machine, going at a high rate of speed, was whirling around an S curve, known as "Death Curve" when it left the road and plunged down into the water.

The other three men gave their names as Walter Tanner of Humarock, John and Harold Hurde of Hancock street, Somerville. The former was charged with drunken driving.

Smith was booked on a charge of drunken driving.

AIR TRAVELERS PREFERRED TO STAY IN BED

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Discontinuance of air passenger service between New York and Boston attributed to "lack of business" resulted in a measure from disinclination of people to get up early in the morning, officials of the Colonial Air Transport Inc., said today.

Another obstacle to successful operation of passenger service in the air was said to be the comparatively limited accomodations for passengers in available planes.

To fly from New York to Boston in the service announced discontinued by the Colonial Company, a passenger had to be ready to take the air at Teterboro, Hasbrouck Heights, N. J., at 6:30 a. m. Hasbrouck Heights is a ride of one hour from New York, and allowing another hour for the preliminary effort necessary to get up, dress and have breakfast, the prospective passengers had to be up and doing before many people go to bed.

Company officials pointed out also that early efforts at carrying passengers by bus were not successful with the small buses, reaching a paying basis only when larger equipment was installed.

'Blonds Dumb? Absolutely!' ~ Says Anita Loos, Upholding Sage ~ Observation of Marrying Parson

WROTE UP BLONDES

Anita Loos agrees with the Rev. V. F. Loos, "marrying parson," that when the average blonde marries she doesn't know what it's all about.

BUT SHE GETS HER MAN

Mrs. Bud Stillman would probably tell Mr. Loos and Miss Loos (they're not related) that the blonde usually gets her man, though!

NOTE SHE'S HAD FIVE!

Peggy Joyce should know for she has been married to five and is reported as angling for No. 6. And she's a blonde, too. She's been very quiet since Mr. Loos spoke.

DUMB? THEY GET RICH

"Peaches" Browning would say if they are dumb they have wit enough to get the money when they cease being an "old man's darling."

WELL, I'M NOT DUMB!

Texas Guinan said: "Bring that preacher over to my club some night and I'll show a blonde who's not dumb. He'll be the dumb one when he sees the size of his check!"

SHE WAS A BLONDE

But now Constance Talmadge is a brunette. "The dumb blonde awakens the protective instincts in a man," she said. "She gets her man without effort, usually. Men like the ones they must protect."

CHARGE LEVINE TRIES TO FORCE OUT DROUHIN

French sporting daily, to be "so strained their flying together across the Atlantic to New York now is no longer possible."

The Matin openly alleges that Levine wants to get rid of Drouhin so as to be free to engage the British pilot, Captain Hinchcliffe, by haggling over the contract until Drouhin is disgusted and withdraws.

The provisional contract, as described by the newspapers, provided that Levine pay Drouhin $1,000 for a year's engagement, to include piloting the Columbia across the Atlantic.

In addition, they say, Levine was to deposit 200,000 francs (about $12,000) in the Bank of France by way of insurance on the pilot's life, on the eve of the departure for New York, and pay Drouhin a forfeit of 100,000 francs if he engaged another pilot.

Drouhin now declares, the papers say, that $1,000 for a transatlantic flight and a year's salary is "ridiculous," that he never took the provisional arrangement seriously and demanded the salary be increased. This Levine refused to do, the papers say, and there the matter rests for the present.

Bones of Whale 5,000,000 Years Old in Canada

Sooke, B. C., Aug. 3 (A.P.)—The fossilized vertebrae of a primary whale of the miocene period which lived about 5,000,000 years ago, has been discovered by Professor Homer P. Littler, head of the department of geology of Clark University, Worcester.

The discovery was made in the fossil beds of Sooke Harbor about twenty-five miles from Victoria, in the course of excavation work being carried on by a Summer geological party of Princeton University of which Professor Little is a member.

The fossilized vertebrae were of a type of whale new to science, it was said, which was the early type from which the mammal whales of modern times have evolved.

MUSSOLINI AIDS VANZETTI'S SISTER

Rome, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—With a passport granted through the personal mediation of Premier Mussolini, a sister of Bartolomeo Vanzetti left Turin today on the way to Boston, where she hopes to arrive to see her brother alive.

Deciding to go to America after the receipt by friends here of a message from the Sacco-Vanzetti Defense Committee, saying her brother desired to see her, she tried vainly for ten days to obtain a passport. Finally she sent a message to Premier Mussolini, after which her request was quickly granted.

Before leaving Signorina Vanzetti said the Italian government was closely following the case of her brother, who, with Nicola Sacco, is under sentence of death for murder in Massachusetts.

"Since last November we have been invoking the Duce's intervention," she declared, "but through the Under-Secretary of State for Foreign Affairs we learned that great difficulties prevented such action.

"Quite recently, however, I sent to the Governor of Massachusetts through the Minister of Foreign Affairs and the consul at Boston a request for executive clemency."

SACCO COUNSEL DISTURBED BY COUNCIL DELAY

The Sacco-Vanzetti defense committee and the counsel for the condemned men took radically different views today of the unexpected postponement of today's meeting of the Governor's Council until tomorrow.

Attorneys William G. Thompson and Herbert Ehrmann, counsel for the men, were plainly disturbed and upset at the postponement. On the other hand, leaders of the defense committee expressed their satisfaction, declaring that the postponement was a most hopeful sign for Sacco and Vanzetti.

The two attorneys declared they had spent a restless, wakeful night, and they had no desire to spend another tonight. They feared that with the postponement of the council meeting, the announcement of the Governor's decision also would be delayed until tomorrow.

The attorneys refused to state what action would be taken in event an unfavorable decision is handed down by Governor Fuller. An appeal to the Supreme Court of the United States, however, is believed to be the only course open to them.

Gardner Jackson, a member of the committee of defense, called at the State House early today to present to Governor Fuller a detailed statement of the finances of the committee, which included a printed list of expenditures of the more than $350,000. Not finding the Governor at the State House, Jackson went to his hotel, where he handed the papers to Secretary Herbert A. MacDonald. Jackson said there is about $2,000 left of the fund, including the $1,000 check sent from Sweden, the $500 sent by a Chicago man and $100 from an automobile company.

Members of the defense committee were confident that the postponement of the Council meeting indicated that a favorable decision is forthcoming. In addition to the financial statement asked for by the Governor a few days ago, Jackson also presented along with it the bill of lading for the barrel of pelts which Vanzetti claimed to have been peddling on the day of the holdup murder.

The committee's statement also set forth the expense of maintaining defense headquarters at No. 256 Hanover street, postage on large quantities of printed matter and letters that have been sent all over the world in an effort to save the two men from death in the electric chair.

Consul's "3,000-Mile Error" Delays Girl at Doors of U. S.

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—An error of 3,000 miles made by an American consul at Riga, Russia, was rectified today with the arrangement of transportation for Siranouch Davidian, a sixteen-year-old Armenian immigrant girl, to Los Angeles.

Because of the consul's mistake Mikael Davidian of Haverhill, Mass., was notified of the girl's prospective arrival. When she reached Ellis Island last week he was there to greet his wife and daughter, whom he was expecting.

When the mistake was revealed officials set about locating the girl's father, Elbag Davidian, in Los Angeles. Yesterday he sent money for her transportation West, which was arranged today.

NEW ENGLAND COOL WAVE THREATENED BY STORM

A storm area developing in Texas early today threatens to disperse the current cool wave in New England which reduced the mercury here this morning to 55 above, the lowest point on this date in the past 50 years.

Fair weather is officially predicted to continue through tonight, but cloudy skies are forecast tomorrow as the southwestern disturbance sweeps on its northeastward course.

Forecast for Boston and vicinity: Fair tonight; Thursday partly cloudy, not much change in temperature, gentle variable winds.

Giant Ford Freight Plane Takes to Air

Detroit, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—A giant Ford tri-motored transport plane, one of the largest type of airplane now built in America, fitted as an aerial delivery truck, took off at the Ford airport this morning for New York for delivery to a typewriter company which will use it to deliver products to purchasers. The plane was the first freight carrier of its kind to be built for service outside the regular Ford air lines.

The plane will fly to New York on a test flight, and from New York to Hartford, Ct., where it will start on the first delivery trip to Havanna.

"Using the plane for aerial deliveries will mark another demonstration which will convince business men that airplanes are safe, reliable and useful in a commercial sense," Edsel Ford, president of the Ford Motor Company, said today. "When business in general begins to utilize this new factor in transportation commercial aviation will develop the vast possibilities that it holds for improving business opportunities."

The plane, with a speed of 120 miles an hour and a cruising range of 500 miles, is constructed to carry a load of 2,730 pounds.

LOCKHART MILL—END LOCKHART

CAPITOL SPLIT OVER 'CHOICE' OF COOLIDGE

aid in a similar situation twenty years ago. But Mr. Coolidge did not say that. He merely said he did not choose to run again. Of course, no man can afford to 'run' for the presidency when his running involves bucking the American tradition against a third term.

"Roosevelt also tried that later—and the result is well remembered."

FAITS "WILL OF PEOPLE."

That represents the view of the average Republican politician in Washington. As viewed by these practical politicians, Mr. Coolidge's statement is calculated to remove whatever stigma there might be to landing for another term, without, at the same time, removing himself entirely from the picture.

He is now in the position of not only at least seeking a third term, therefore, if the Republican convention next year should proceed to nominate him anyway, he can accept with resignation and solemnly declare "The will of the people."

On the other hand, there is a small group of Republican leaders who have always cherished a private belief that Mr. Coolidge would not again be a candidate. These hopefully regard the President's dramatic statement as a confirmation of their views, and they were trying today, "I told you so."

PENS WAY FOR OTHERS.

The same practical politicians who believe that Mr. Coolidge's disposal of candidacy is in reality a bid for renomination, also believe that it will be extremely difficult to nominate him after the country has saturated thoroughly with his reluctance.

They point out that Mr. Coolidge has now extended an open invitation to all his rivals—Herbert Hoover, Frank O. Lowden, Charles G. Dawes, William E. Borah, and there—to get into the race, and here are few who believe the invitation will be ignored.

Gov. Lowden already has an organization functioning. Lowden-for-President clubs have been in progress of formation for months in many parts of the country, principally in the West. This work has proceeded even in the face of Mr. Coolidge's apparent intention of merely remaining silent and letting is friends renominate him.

An enormous impetus will be given now to this Lowden move-

G.O.P. SHOCKED MANY DOUBT IF HE MEANS IT

By the Associated Press

Representative comment from men in the public eye upon President Coolidge's statement that he does not "choose" to run for President in 1928 follows:

VICE-PRESIDENT DAWES: His decision will be received with regret by millions of his countrymen.

WILLIAM M. BUTLER, chairman of Republican National Committee: I am not convinced he will not run if nominated.

HERBERT HOOVER, Secretary of Commerce: I regret the suggestion in the President's statement. However, I still believe as I stated in Chicago two weeks ago, that President Coolidge should be renominated and re-elected.

FORMER GOVERNOR LOWDEN of Illinois: I know of no man in all our history who has run away from the presidency.

FRANK W. STEARNS, Boston, close personal friend of the President: I can't see that there is much to be said.

FRANKLIN D. ROOSEVELT, who nominated Governor Smith at last Democratic convention: It's interesting, if conclusive.

SENATOR SMOOT, Republican, Utah: I believe the Republican convention decides that it wants him to run he will do so.

SENATOR WALSH, Democrat, Massachusetts: Frankly, I do not understand the statement.

SENATOR SHIPSTEAD, Farmer-Labor, Minnesota: Cal came and he saw and sensed the revolt of the West.

WILLIAM ALLEN WHITE, Kansas editor: Until he says either definitely, take your measly job and stick it in the mud, he probably will remain in the hands of his friends, one of whom I hope to be.

SENATOR CAPPER, Republican, Kansas: It places the responsibility squarely with the Republican party.

DR. NICHOLAS MURRAY BUTLER, president of Columbia University: He has shown that principle which takes precedence over personal ambition.

FORMER SENATOR WADSWORTH, Republican, New York: I had not expected any such announcement.

CHARLES D. HILLES, vice-chairman National Committee: I think he intends this to be final.

GOVERNOR FULLER of Massachusetts, Republican: The people of the country will do the choosing for him and he will acquiesce.

JAMES LUCEY, Northampton, Vermont's shoemaker - philosopher: The country needs him.

SENATOR MOSES, Republican, New Hampshire: Whoever succeeds him as party leader will none the less carry the Coolidge banner.

SENATOR McLEAN, Republican, Connecticut: It might mean he will not refuse the nomination if tendered him.

GOVERNOR TRUMBULL of Connecticut, Republican: His withdrawal will be a calamity for the Republican party.

SENATOR JOHNSON, Republican, California: It is a most astonishing thing.

SECRETARY OF INTERIOR WORK: It will be a great misfortune to the country if he will not consent to be renominated.

SENATOR DILL, Democrat, of Washington: It will make him a bigger man in the public eye.

Governor "Al" Smith of New York and Governor Ritchie of Maryland, both Democrats, and Speaker "Nick" Longworth, Senator Curtis and Attorney-General Sargent, all Republicans, refused to comment.

"Cal Came and Saw and Heard Roar of Mortgages"

Minneapolis, Minn., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Senator Henrik Shipstead, Farmer-Labor, of Minnesota, said:

"I understand the President's ten-gallon hat is out of the ring," said Senator Shipstead's statement. "Cool, cautious, calculating Cal came and he saw, and sensed the revolt of the West against the domination of our economic and political life by the industrial and financial East.

"The President evidently has been kept awake by the roaring of the mortgages on Western farms and the bleating of the shorn lambs.

"Is he going to discard his cowboy pants for sackcloth and ashes?"

LONDON THINKS PARLEY MOVED COOLIDGE

London, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Several London morning newspapers associated President Coolidge's renunciation of a third term with the happenings at the Geneva naval conference. The Westminster Gazette says:

"In view of the fact that he was responsible for the convening of the conference, desiring to crown his present term of office with an historic pact, it may be surmised that the Geneva failure is a prime factor in his unexpected decision, which may change the whole phase of American politics."

The Star, Liberal, remarks the President's announcement has bewildered "the New York experts" and consequently it is not surprising London finds it "very difficult to read the riddle of this Yankee sphinx."

"It seems," it continued, "that America's Presidents fall because of their virtues and not their vices. Roosevelt, when he became trust-buster, was not re-elected.

Wilson fell because he was not able to carry the country and the Senate with him in his League of Nations scheme, and now it looks as though Coolidge has been 'sniffed' by the failure of the Geneva conference.

"We have no reason to doubt the sincerity with which Coolidge took the initial steps in the cause of disarmament, but the big navy parties on both sides of the Atlantic have been too strong for him.

"It looks as though Geneva would be a gigantic fiasco, and will end in increasing instead of reducing naval armaments.

"Wall Street and Churches Will Weep for Coolidge"

Paris, Aug. 3 (I.N.S.).—"Pertinax," political editor of the Echo De Paris, and one of the best known journalists in Europe, today attributed President Coolidge's decision to the apparent failure of the Geneva naval conference.

"President Coolidge counted upon disarmament to dissipate the hesitations and scruples of the voters about giving him a third term," said "Pertinax." "The world of big business will regret his departure. He was a 'President of tranquility and prosperity.' How many times have we seen popular images of Coolidge qualifying him as God-fearing and a strict observer of the Sabbath? Wall Street will weep for him. So will the churches."

Walsh of Montana Is Glad Third Term Bogey Is Laid Low

Missoula, Mont., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—"The wise determination of President Coolidge not again to be a candidate will be approved by most Americans," Thomas J. Walsh, Democrat, Montana, said today.

"It is scarcely to be believed that any others desiring his re-election were undisturbed by misgiving at departure from the precedent set by Washington, and especially by Jefferson."

"I'LL BE GOSH DERNED!" SAYS "CAL'S" UNCLE JOHN

Plymouth Notch, Vt., Aug. 3 (I.N.S.).—"I'll be gosh derned!"

John Wilder, 81, "uncle to Calvin Coolidge and fiddler extraordinary," exclaimed today when he heard of the President's announcement that he did not "choose" to run again.

"What does he mean when he says choose?" he was asked.

"Means what he says, that he don't want to run. What would you say if you were offered a piece of pie and you didn't desire to have it?"

"Think he has definitely made up his mind?"

"Looks to me kinda like a political move. To be frank, I don't know what Cal means. The country can trust him to do what is exactly right. I don't think the time is ripe for him to drop out."

The consensus in the mountain village, as expressed by Miss Florence Silley, proprietor of the general store, was:

"The President always says what he means. Of course, we all regret that he isn't going to run again."

Leaders Here Are Sure Coolidge Will Run Again

President Coolidge's announcement that he does not "choose" to run for the Presidency in 1928 has not closed the door entirely on his candidacy.

That, if effect, is the opinion of Republican leaders in Massachusetts, expressed after the first shock his announcement caused.

Following are some of the views expressed by Republican leaders:

FORMER GOVERNOR CHANNING B. COX: I know that President Coolidge speaks absolutely truly when he says that he does not choose to be a candidate in 1928, but the American people will choose to have him.

CHARLES E. HATFIELD, former chairman of the Massachusetts Republican State Committee: I hope he changes his mind, if he has made it up, for he is by far the strongest candidate. I really think he is seeking the party sentiment.

CONGRESSMAN FOSS, Fitchburg: President Coolidge probably would prefer the quiet of private life, but my guess is that the people will choose him President for another term.

CHARLES H. INNES: What! He won't run again! This is a great surprise to me. I think it is very unfortunate for both the party and for the country.

CONGRESSMAN A. PIATT ANDREW, Gloucester: The ambiguity of the President's statement will but attract increased attention to the fact that he is the most available and most favored candidate.

CONGRESSMAN DALLINGER: I had assumed that he would be renominated by the Republican convention with substantial unanimity and that he would be re-elected to the high office he has so ably filled.

Big Stack of Telegrams Received by Coolidge

Rapid City, S. D., Aug. 3 (A.P.).—A tremendous stack of telegrams was laid before President Coolidge today, attesting the widespread reaction and surprise with which the country has met his statement that he does not choose to run for another term.

They came from everywhere, and while they were not made public, they were said to convey the expressions from political leaders and friends in virtually all of the States.

Far from the centres of population, where news is not readily accessible, members of the President's party contented themselves with discussing their own views of the unprecedented development and with looking forward to what bearing the statement might have on the remainder of the Summer here.

While there were some who professed to see in the announcement a determination to avoid the 1928 campaign, others took the expression of Senator Capper, of Kansas, a White House guest, as their inspiration of the situation.

"I cannot see that the announcement materially changes the situation," said Senator Capper. "It places the responsibility squarely with the Republican party as to its choice of a nominee next year."

There is nothing here to indicate that the statement will cause any change in Mr. Coolidge's activity in the Black Hills where he expects to remain until the first week in September.

How to Protect the Throat When Smoking

What 9651* Doctors say on this subject

The signed statements of intelligent men and women whose voices are to them what the hands of the day laborer are to him—the means indispensable to livelihood or success in life—are convincing. Actors and actresses, great singers, men conspicuous in public life, radio announcers, testify that they like LUCKY STRIKE cigarettes because of their finer flavor and because they do not irritate the throat.

Before such statements by laymen were published, questions had been addressed to a number of physicians in various sections of the United States—many of them leading physicians—and some replies had been received. The following is the result of the questionnaire:

Q1—In your judgment is the heat treatment or toasting process applied to tobaccos previously aged and cured, likely to free the cigarette from irritation to the throat?

9651 doctors answered this question "YES".

BETTY ALDEN'S SOCIETY COMMENT

Newport Smart Set Entertaining Players of Casino Company

NEWPORT HAS A NEW PASTIME. THEATRICALS. The very creme de la creme of the Summer colony has taken the Casino Theatre and its company to its hearts. Not only does society entertain the players, but it turns out brilliantly each evening at the Casino Theatre. Not content with this measure of enthusiastic support some of the younger set has actually gone on the stage as "supes." The three handsome daughters of the Cameron McRae Winslows "walked on" during Hamlet, and talked to do the same thing in next week's presentation of "The Devil's Disciple."

FAR FROM CONSIDERING THE THING ARDUOUS the Misses Winslow are eager for their next appearances. Who knows? Perhaps these young members of the Newport Four Hundred may have started a new fad to savor the sauce of Summer evenings in the Mecca of the Fashionables. The Misses Natalie, Theodora and Emelie are as decorative as can be and would adorn any stage whatsoever. Just now they have as their house guest, Miss Helen Rhodes and with her do the fashionable round of Beach and Casino.

THE LUNCHEON MRS. ARTHUR CURTISS JAMES gave for the Casino players was a joyous preliminary to several such affairs. Next on the cards as host is James Stewart Cushman, a potentate of the Casino's governing forces. His is heart and soul in the endeavor to make a social and theatrical success of this dramatic revival of the Casino Theatre. The playhouse, designed by Stanford White to the tune of James Gordon Bennett dollars, had become a tradition until this Summer some prophetic souls of the Casino's management saw great possibilities and shook it out of its linen covers and coating of dust to be polished up as setting for some brilliant performances.

AND VERY BRILLIANT THEY are. Newport's multi-millionaire set, moneyed potentates whose names are household by-words are season subscribers for boxes, and those who couldn't secure boxes came in on the seat list. Ogden Mills, William H. Vanderbilt, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt, are of the former. Also Mrs. F. Lothrop Ames, Mrs. Nathaniel Thayer, Mrs. Hugh Auchincloss, the Goadby Loews and Robert Gould Shaw. They were among the people who went "back stage" after last evening's performance to the informal reception and marks each Tuesday performance. Newport's theatrical season continues through August, with a change of play each week and famous professionals taking the leading roles.

MISS HELEN RHODES AND Miss Theodora Winslow appeared in the Beach turnout to add each her individual smartness to the assemblage, Miss Rhodes was in white and Miss Winslow in tangerine silk. Mrs. Joshua Cosden, now a guest at "Beechwood" was very attractive at Bailey's in white banded in blue. A handsome young woman, she, with much spirit and dash and a wardrobe of French elegance and simplicity.

MRS. RICHARD STEVENS OF Castle Point, New Jersey, is again in Newport. Newport is, of course, giving a cordial welcome to this smartly turned out matron. Her frocks and accessories have that different touch so desirable but not frequently attained. Her frocks tell effectively the tale of Parisian simplicity and in contrast she wears a veil, a la harem, with the ends caught up on the brim of her small chapeau. Long earrings dangled a golden brown tint to harmonize with her costume's color note.

MRS. JOHN CHIPMAN GRAY is making a Newport stay and is putting up at the Bateman Cottage. In Newport friends and relations of Mrs. Gray's abound, especially among members of the more sedate set, such as the Misses Ida and Ellen Mason. Mrs. Gray was Nina Mason of the same Boston family. Even Miss Ellen Mason could not resist yesterday's bright sunshine, and had her motor set her down at Bailey's for a half hour beneath one of the gorgeously striped sun umbrella that dot the sands.

MRS. RUSSELL STURGIS CODMAN is staying with Mrs. Gordon Knox Bell at Green End House, a pleasant place of quiet seclusion in the Newport that is made up of charming but unpretentious homes with gardens devoid of landscaping and studied effects. Green End is not far from Dudley Place, Newport home of Mrs. Church, or from the villa that this season houses the Daniel de Menocals.

THE QUEEN MAB WITH THE Horace Binneys aboard comes sailing back from Bar Harbor to Newport some time this week. She is expected about Friday if wind and weather permit. The Binneys practically live aboard the Queen Mab, which is a comfortable craft as well as a good sailer. In fact the Binneys are much more often to be found afloat than at home in their Le Roy Avenue place, "Bon Accueil."

Old Glory in Series of Speed Tests Today

New York, Aug. 3.—The Rome and return monoplane Old Glory will be give na series of speed and gasoline consumption tests today, according to an announcement by Lloyd W. Bertaud, who, with James De Witt Hill, will pilot the plane.

Old Glory remained in the hangar while adjustments were made to two propellers, each of which will be tested on speed and consumption on flights to determine which gives the greater efficiency.

Bertaud declared that load tests would follow the speed trials and that on Tuesday or Wednesday of next week the plane would be flown over the air mail route to Cleveland and return, with which both pilots, veterans of the air mail service, are familiar, to check the instruments and test the radio.

On the Cleveland flight, Old Glory will return to pass over Allentown, Pa., at the request of that city's Chamber of Commerce.

AGRICULTURAL COORDINATION TASK OF U. S.

By JAMES T. WILLIAMS, JR., Editor of Universal Servie.

Williamstown, Aug. 3.—While a majority of the members of the Institute of Politics were still enthusing over the sweeping defence of British imperialism to which they listened at the conference addressed by a spokesman of the British government, the administration at Washington received a thorough wigging at the round table on American agriculture, conducted by Professor Charles Austin Beard of Columbia University.

The supreme task of American statesmanship, he declared to be "the coordination of agriculture and machine industry. As steps to this end the professor demanded:

First: Increasing instead of reducing the income and inheritance taxes.

SCHOOL IMPROVEMENT.

Second: Improvement of schools, erection of power plants for rural regions and "a hundred improvements that add to the wealth and power, beauty and happiness of the people."

Third: Reducing the surplus of plutocracy and discouraging investments in foreign countries.

Fourth: Compelling Americans to be content with four or five per cent. at home instead of protecting them when they get ten or fifteen per cent. on their investment abroad.

Fifth: Organization of farmers for the cooperative determination of crop areas to be planted and the cooperative disposal of the surplus and the cooperative distribution of costs and benefits.

FOR GREATER DISTRIBUTION.

Sixth: Greater distribution of crops and the use to this end of both the Federal and State governments.

On the "inherent merits" of the McNary-Haugen bill the Columbia professor declined to pass judgment but he was evidently not impressed with the arguments of President Coolidge, Secretary Mellon and Secretary Hoover against it.

The professor thought this bill might prove as helpful to the farmer as "wearing cowboy breeches and fishing with worms in western waters."

Upon the question of cancellation of the war debts of Europe to the United States the professor did not declare himself. But he evidently has little use for the Coolidge-Mellon-Hoover program for the promotion of American prosperity.

Uproar in State House as Fire Bell Clangs

The State House was thrown into an uproar at 11:30 today when the fire alarm bell suddenly began ringing. Newspaper men in the Governor's office in connection with the Sacco-Vanzetti case, city stenographers, police officers and others, rushed for the front door in a near panic.

Investigation revealed that it was only a watchman's call that had become stuck while being tested, and its loud clanging continued until the electric circuit was broken again.

NEW 'FOLLIES' GLEAMS AT COLONIAL

The Follies!

The frothy, frivolous, funny and feather-edged "Ziegfeld Follies" burst upon the old town last evening and celebrated a twenty-first birthday at the Colonial.

Not since the Ziegfeldian "Rio Rita" has Boston been favored with a girl-and-music fiesta tuned to a Broadway blood-pressure. And not since the palmy days when Bert Williams and Leon Errol joined, made appeal to local sensibilities has the Follies meant as much to Boston patrons of light-hearted entertainment as this newest glorification of the American girl.

For, in former years, these gay affairs arrived here somewhat diluted for home consumption. Now they have been offered full strength to Boylston street first. Oh, well, Broadway can wait!

Yes, indeed, it was "full strength" last night. For such a prodigality of revue has seldom if ever been visited upon these staid and decorous regions. Beauty filled the stage almost continuously and simply overwhelmed the eye. Throbbing tunes, the kind that stay with the ear, followed the baton of Orchestra Leader Frank Tours; and dancers, singers and comedians gave of their best to serve the senses.

Eddie Cantor, who freely acknowledged that he has "improved," was Mr. Ziegfeld's chief funny man. And to be "chief" in any department of a Ziegfeld enterprise is distinction enough. Suffice it to say that Mr. Cantor was just as funny as he intended to be. And that means a very great deal, for this active little comic takes his job seriously.

And the beauty brigade! In the richest sort of profusion it glided, pranced, strutted and pirouetted about the stage. There were clothes of every description and color, from the gorgeously "overdressed" models for which the Follies have always been famous, to the—er—less burdensome attire for which the Follies have been equally noted.

At the head of this glittering ensemble Irene Delroy was the most charming of all. And for good measure she danced, she sang and she appeared in the sketches.

Though the 21st edition has many contributing reasons for its rare entertainment—music by Irving Berlin, scenes by Joseph Urban, dance arrangements by Sammy Lee, and so on—its main distinction is the feminine splendor. To adequately describe it is well nigh impossible now, less than an hour after it has faded from view.

When Mr. Ziegfeld requires talent with beauty there are the Brox Sisters, pert purveyors of three-part harmony; there are the Ingenues, a dozen or so musicians who play jazz as you seldom hear it; there are the Albertina Rasch dancers; there are—but the list seems endless. The new Follies is just about as much lavish entertainment as you can stand for one evening.

Glittering Glory

Charming prima donna in the new Ziegfeld Follies at the Colonial.

BRIG.-GEN. RHEA DIES AT HOME

Brigadier-General James C. Rhea, U. S. A., retired, and who until July 1 was head of the Citizens' Military Training Camps in New England, died suddenly today at his home in Brighton. Members of the family were at the bedside when the end came.

General Rhea was a native of Iowa and graduated from West Point in 1899. He served in the Philippines until 1907 and then attended the Army Staff College at Fort Leavenworth, from which he graduated with honors. He returned to the Philippines in 1912, serving as inspector of the constabulary, and later was in command of the district of Zamdouga.

He returned to the United States and was finally assigned as head of the Citizens' Military Training in the New England district. On July 1 he was retired and returned to his home in Brighton. General Rhea, until a few days ago, appeared in his usual good health and his death was unexpected.

A widow and several children, one the wife of a naval officer now on duty in China, survive.

COLONIAL AIR TRANSPORT ADDS THREE DIRECTORS

Hartford, Ct., Aug. 3 (A.P.)—At a meeting of the directors of the Colonial Air Transport, Inc., three new directors were added to the board. They are ex-Senator James W. Wadsworth of New York, General J. Leslie Kincaid of New York, president of the American Hotels Company, and Colonel Lawrence La Tourette Driggs, president of the American Flying Club and organizer of the National Guard flying service in New York.

GENEVA ENVOYS TAKE UP JAP 'COMPROMISE'

Geneva, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Announcement that the six plenipotentiaries at the tripartite naval conference, supplemented by three or four other delegates, would meet today to discuss the Japanese compromise plan stirred hopes that a treaty eventually can be drawn up at Geneva.

The decision is felt to depend upon the verdict of the British cabinet meeting in London today.

The American State Department has been heard from by its delegation, although in what sense the American spokesman declined to say.

Hugh S. Gibson, chief of the American delegation, has considerable liberty of action as to calling off or proceeding with the plenary session set for tomorrow.

BOSTON FIRM TAKES OVER SQUANTUM VICTORY PLANT

The Boston Corporation, headed by Samuel Wilde, No. 60 State street, Boston, today took possession of the Victory Plant at Squantum, on a lease from the Government. They plan to develop the property as a shipping terminal along similar lines to the famous Bush Terminal in New York. In connection freight an dtraffic officials of the Pennsylvania Railroad are expected at the plant on Monday, with Frank S. Davis of the Maritime Association of the Boston Chamber of Commerce. The New Haven Railroad is already laying a spur track connecting the plant with the Old Colony division at Atlantic station.

AGED WOMAN HELD IN THEFT OF JEWELRY

A seventy-year-old woman, Mrs. Catherine Coleman of North Beacon court, Watertown, was held for the grand jury on a larceny charge, today, by Judge John M. Gibbs in Waltham District Court.

The woman is accused of the theft of jewelry valued at $250 from the estate of her daughter, Mrs. James B. Porter of Waltham. Mrs. Porter died some time since and her husband, who is executor, brought the charge against his mother-in-law. On account of Mrs. Coleman's age she was released on her own recognizance.

Perspiration need never offend others

[if you use this purifying toilet soap]

A STIFF GAME of golf or tennis—warm sunshine. Naturally, he perspires—but he need not offend.

There's no excuse for the unpleasant odor of perspiration now. It can be avoided—easily!

Just change to Lifebuoy—a toilet soap so refreshing that millions bathe with it daily. It keeps you free from embarrassing odor—even in hottest weather or after vigorous exercise.

Complexions stay healthy

Lifebuoy's mild antiseptic lather not only purifies body pores—it purifies face pores, too, keeping complexions clear, fresh and glowing with health.

Better still, this same purifying lather helps protect against disease—by removing germs from hands, as well as dirt. Yet it's so gentle and soothing to the skin that men, women and children, everywhere, use it always—for face, hands and bath.

Note its clean, hygienic scent

Lifebuoy is so different from other toilet and bath soaps that even its scent is different. Not a perfume, but a clean, pleasantly hygienic scent which tells you that Lifebuoy gives greater protection.

Even before you've finished your first cake, you'll be enthusiastic over this cleanest of all soap scents, which quickly evaporates after rinsing.

Without its antiseptic, Lifebuoy would still be a wonderful toilet soap—but you wouldn't get the same measure of protection.

Extra protection—no extra cost

Lifebuoy assures greater health protection and lasting freedom from perspiration odor — yet costs no more, probably less, than other toilet soaps you now use. Lifebuoy is orange-red, a big generous cake. Get some today wherever soap is sold.

EVENING AMERICAN SPORTS

BARRETT DAY AT FENWAY

Cambridge Neighbors to Honor Popular Chicago Outfielder This P. M.

Bill Barrett Day is being celebrated this afternoon at Fenway Park. All Cambridge will be there to pay tribute to the Chicago White Sox right fielder in the game against the Red Sox, which opens a three-game series here.

Barrett is a Cambridge boy, and got his baseball start at Rindge Tech. Later he played with the St. John's Catholic Club before entering upon his professional career.

Members of the Cambridge Lodge of Elks will honor their brother member when Barrett comes to bat. Bill has been a member of the Cambridge Lodge eight years. A section of the grandstand has been reserved for the Cambridge Elks. Mayor Edward Quinn of Cambridge is honorary chairman of the committee.

Tonight Barrett will be the special guest at a social gathering at the Cambridge Elks home at which members of both the Red Sox and White Sox will attend.

The White Sox arrive here in time to bump into a different looking Red Sox outfit than the one which had dropped eight of the 12 games to Chicago. The Red Sox have an even chance of knocking off the White Sox now that the Boston pitchers have settled down. Charlie Ruffing or Eric Lonergan will pitch for the Red Sox this afternoon.

The two well pitched games yesterday by Hal Wiltse and Danny MacFayden has won many new supporters to the Sox, Carrigan's team.

LEO DALEY TO CALL OUT B. C. GRID SQUAD SOON

Leo Daley, football coach at Boston College, plans to get away to an early start. The coach will call out candidates the last week in August and work will start at once in preparation for the coming season.

The big problem at the Heights this Fall is to find a capable punter.

'FORT BANKS FIGHT NIGHT'

Tomorrow night will be "Fort Banks Night" with the fistic fans of Greater Boston and that means that all who like the rugged stuff within ropes will assemble on the grounds of the Winthrop fort to take in the regular weekly show put on for the benefit of the seven soldier boy enterprises at the garrison.

There will be a total of five bouts split up into four classes, two for lightweights, one feather, one middle and one heavy.

Feathers will feature in the finals, an eight rounder between Henry Janco, the Navy champion, a sailor on the U. S. S. Florida, and Harry Bilsbee of this city, the former amateur, while middles, Joe Barlow, Roxbury, and Gene Lonedi, U. S. S. Childs, will figure in the eight rounds semi-final.

The lightweights will mingle when Al Longoro, U. S. S. Lexington, takes on Danny Duggan, Charlestown, and Tony Magna, South Boston, bosses Eddie Belrose, National Guard, both sizes. In another six, Dan Cronin, the National Guard heavy, will meet Battling Skea of the U. S. S. Florida.

Argonne's Bargain Show Marked Success

By JACK CONWAY

MORE than 10,000 fans voted that the Argonne A. A.'s bargain boxing card was a success. The crowd got more than low prices. It was also furnished with plenty of spirited fighting. There were no champions or near-champions on the card. Just boys eager to furnish value for a night's pay.

Jack Gagnon of New Bedford continued on Victory Trail when he whanged out a win over Romero Rojas, Chilean heavyweight, in a ten-round scramble. It was a hard, tough battle with Gagnon a superior physical reserve carrying him out front.

Gagnon galloped into the lead at the start, but by the time the half way point had been reached Rojas was grabbing the honors. In the fifth session, Rojas whipped a right to the jaw and followed this with a left hook to the body. Those blows had Gagnon groggy.

The badly-scarred Chilean warrior continued to press his advantage in the sixth, seventh and eighth rounds. He then blew wide open and Gagnon took the last two sessions by wide margins.

CUNNY HOLMES of the South End, colored youth who bobs around the ring like a rubber ball, outpointed Young Chicho in six rounds. Holmes dropped the Filipino in the first round, but the latter got himself together before the count and fought back savagely. From then on it was a rip and tear affair, Holmes getting the edge at the final bell.

Ted Coolidge of Newport didn't have much trouble in defeating Tommy Robson of Malden in their second bout. The Robson of ten years ago would have made short work of the rugged youngster who outscored him last night.

Tommy Lanzon of Revere proved too much for Jimmy McDonigal in a six-round scrap. Although outpointed, McDonigal made a fine showing and was in there battling for all he was worth until the contest ended.

AL LEWIS of the South End punched too hard for Dick Lambert of Portland. Lambert was badly battered when a towel tossed from his corner halted festivities in the fifth frame.

Frankie Glenick of Nashua, N. H., outpointed Johnny Ross of the North End in four chapters.

Jimmy Picardi of East Boston proved too fast and clever for Frankie Lambert of Portland in their four-round event.

Bob Lowrie, the Scotch battler, won an eight-round decision over Danny Sears of East Boston. In the late stages of the bout Sears did considerable mauling and pushing. This bout was uninteresting.

TITLE BIKE RACES AT OVAL

Another pair of championship races are on the card arranged by Manager Nat Butler for tonight at the Revere Cycle track. There will be a 40-mile national paced championship race and a one-mile New England professional sprint title event.

George Chapman, who was shut out in the last three title events, enters tonight's race with full knowledge that he must rush his pedals at a furious clip to ward off the high grade competition expected from the young Italian.

Plenty of spirited competition is expected in the race for the New England sprint title. Heltenberg, Costello and Chick Meyers loom up as the outstanding riders.

Gehrig Hits Homer No. 36

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Lou Gehrig advanced his season's home run total to thirty-six today by getting out for the circuit in the second inning of the first game of a doubleheader between the Yankees and Tigers. Hoyner was pitching, and none was on base. The blow gave Gehrig a lead of two homers on Babe Ruth.

Cubs vs. Stoneham

The Somerville Cubs will play the Stoneham Town Team at Lincoln Park, Somerville, tomorrow evening.

The Cubs have won their last eight starts, numbering among their victories the St. Patrick's Catholic Club, Hull A. A. and Somerville Bruins.

BRAVES OPEN 3-GAME SERIES WITH CUBS

Chicago, Aug. 3.—The Boston Braves, full of pep after making a clean sweep of a three-game series in Pittsburgh and knocking the Pirates out of the lead in the National League race, arrived in town today to open a three-game series with the Cubs.

Joe McCarthy's Braves and their followers showered all sorts of praise upon the visitors for the work of the Tribe in the Smoky City enabled the natives to gain a game and a half advantage over the field in the wild scramble for the National League bunting, but there is great fear in their hearts over what the Bostonians will do here.

Danny's crew has raised havoc with all the leaders in late-season spurts for the past few years, and Windy City rooters are not sure but that the Hub outfit will treat the Cubs as roughly as they did the Pirates and perhaps enable one of the other contenders to reach the pinnacle.

The Braves haven't any hard feeling towards the Cubs as they have towards the Pirates but at the same time Danny has visions of getting his team up to the top of the second division and having escaped from the cellar by virtue of the victories in Pittsburgh, he doesn't plan to stop winning just now.

John Henry Wertz, always effective against the Cubs, was Danny's choice to fling this afternoon. Miracle Man Joe McCarthy, pilot of the Braves, will use either Charlie Root or Hal Carlson, his ace, Joseph being very anxious to maintain the advantage he now holds in the pennant struggle.

GATES TO SUB FOR DORVAL

Jack "Napoleon" Dorval, the heavyweight who was floored by Jack Kearns to avenge his differences with Jack Dempsey, doesn't seem to be ranked as the world's most tragile fighter. He's hurt again.

Matched to box Arthur De Koh in the headline attraction of tonight's boxing show at Ebbets Field, Dorval has served notice that he will be unable to appear. He sustained a deep cut over an eye in training.

Promoter Humbert Fugazy will use rugged Leo Gates as a substitute. Gates served as a sparring partner for Jack Sharkey when the latter was preparing for his match with Jack Sharkey.

Dorval has been forced to call off several matches durigg the last year because of injuries received in training.

In addition to the Gates-De Koh bout, which is scheduled for twelve rounds, Fugazy will put on the following card tonight:

Harold Mays vs. "Buster" Martin, twelve rounds; Tiger Schecter vs Murray Giblin, six rounds, and Roberto Roberti vs. Emanuel Jondis, four rounds.

CLASSY BOXERS AT DILBOY SHOW

Dilboy Post V. F. W. of Somerville will stage one of the biggest open air amateur boxing shows ever held in that city tomorrow night at Dilboy Field.

Boxers from all different parts of the State have entered amongst whom are some of the classiest boys now in the amateur ranks.

There will be competition in six classes 112, 118, 125, 135, 147 pounds and heavyweights. A band concert will hold the attention of the fans before and during the bouts. In event of rain the entire show will be held Friday night.

CAMBRIDGE C. C. TACKLES QUINCY Y. M. H. A. TONIGHT

The Cambridge Catholic Club faces strong opposition tonight at Cambridge Field, when it tackles the strong Quincy Y. M. H. A. nine, champions of the new England Y. M. H. A. League. The visiting team will have many college stars in their lineup, including Hank Summers, who starred quite a bit first baseman throughout the West this past season. Ernie Williams and Jim Dudley will form the battery for the Catholic Club.

Big Chicago Gate Will Set Record City of Enthusiasm

Johnson Carries On Former Helped Him Braves Get Revenge

—By Nick Flatley—

CHICAGO WILL SHOW WORLD FIGHT ENTHUSIASM

CHICAGO, with a big championship fight on its hands, will proceed to show the world something about high ticket prices. The gate for the Dempsey-Tunney war will establish some new international records. It will go over the two million mark surely and make previous collections look more or less like small change.

Nick Flatley

The customers seem to get as much fun as the promoters over establishing top figures so everything is lovely. The fight fan will pay more than any known species of fish for a seat, from which he knows that he will not be able to see anything much except the pin feathers on the back of the neck of the bird who sits in front of him.

Chicago, one of the world's biggest cities, is also one of the most enthusiastic. The boys out that way take their fun seriously. They come to blows, and even shots, over the respective merits of the Cubs and the White Sox.

When the Army-Navy football game was planted there last Fall frenzied citizens were roaming the streets in the loop district waving hundred dollar bills and crying plaintively for tickets. Money was no object when Chi had the football fever.

It will be the same thing when the large quarrel is put on. The young millionaires will box but ten rounds, which is no distance for a title scrap. But the frenzied citizens will spend their all, even to the rum money, to get inside Soldiers Field.

This yard is so large that the customers who perch along the skyline on the outskirts will have to go to the movies afterward to get an idea of what they were supposed to see. That will not keep them from coughing up until the last pasteboard is sold.

Chicago will get a great kick out of the fight, and the visitors from the effete East will gather a great kick from the city and its spirit.

THUS FAR DEMPSEY IS LEADING TUNNEY, TWO LAWSUITS TO ONE.

Has shouted them come and go;
And he will begin to weaken
In twenty more, or so.

JOHNSON EXAMPLE OF VALUE OF FORM

WALTER JOHNSON, after 20 years of most active sharp-shooting, can still whistle the old onion across the plate before the batter knows just what it's all about. The Potomac Peril has been going along for more years than most of the great ones ever attempted and keeps on being one of the best.

He will break down some time, but it will be his legs, not his wonderful arm that will cause the retreat from active service. Only one other pitcher in history had a long career than Johnson—Cy Young, a superman as far as physique went, if ever there was one.

Johnson is the finest example of perfect rhythym the game has known. There is no motion in an approach to the swoop of a bird and there's never a sign of snap or jerkiness to pull the old muscles. Johnson is form exemplified. He had the stuff to begin with, and discovered how to use it while he was still young. That's why he's up there yet.

Form plays its big part in any sport and the kid who novice hard enough to acquire it usually climbs somewhere around the heights.

BRAVES GET EVEN FOR BANCROFT ATTACK

Our Braves have been suffering a year of terrible disappointments, but they have one source of consolation. They have made the Pittsburgh Pirates suffer plenty. And that is revenge for the cowardly sock Earl Smith took at Manager Dave Bancroft some time back.

The Braves have knocked the Pirates around a lot lately, and the beatings may mean the loss of the pennant. The Cub pitching and the rush of the Giants indicate a tight finish. The Boston club goes after Pittsburgh with plenty of fire and desire. The boys might get somewhere if they carried the same urge against the rowdy sock Earl Smith took at Manager Dave Bancroft some time back.

But we would hesitate to advise Manager Bancroft to pick fights with the rowdy members of the other six teams.

Halitosis easy to prevent

Nothing retards you in business, courtship and society like a real case of halitosis (unpleasant breath). It is a continual offense—and needless, too.

Since you, yourself, can never tell when you have halitosis, the only way to be sure of not offending is to rinse the mouth with Listerine every day—especially before any close personal contact.

⅓ Had Halitosis

30 streetcar conductors, meeting the public at close range every day of the year, said that about one person out of three offends by halitosis. Who should know better than they?

Face to face evidence

So effective, it destroys even the powerful onion odor, Listerine makes short work of milder, but no less unpleasant odors arising in the mouth. It's a good thing to keep a bottle handy in home and office.

TEX WANTS TO HOLD GO SEPT. 15

Rickard Thinks Dempsey Will Agree; September 22 Is Latest Date

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—The Dempsey-Tunney heavyweight championship match at Chicago may be staged September 15, after all, as originally planned, instead of September 22, Tex Rickard declared today on his return from Chicago.

Rickard declared he was making every effort to convince Jack Dempsey who has been holding out for a later date, that September 15 is the most desirable time for the bout. Rickard has exhausted his arguments in telegrams and telephone talks with the former champion and when the last 24 hours of existence of the present deadline expires today, Rickard said, he will no longer be under any obligation to Dempsey.

Rickard talked with Leo P. Flynn, Dempsey's manager, shortly after returning from New York and received from Flynn assurances that Dempsey would confer with Rickard and Lawrence Tierney, representing the Chicago Stadium Corporation, in New York today.

Tierney is now conferring with the New York Athletic Commission. Rickard said it does not look as if Dempsey will be in New York Rickard said he could, therefore, see no reason why the bout should not be given to Chicago if the commission would consent to that he would sign up right here.

Calza in Hospital After Stecher Bout

Philadelphia, Aug. 3 (A.P.)—Ottavio Calza, veteran of the prize ring, was in a hospital here today as a result of injuries received in the bout with Joe Stecher, which was a match last night at the Philadelphia National League baseball park.

Calza appeared to be suffering from the effects of a beating received in the hospital attaches said he was resting quietly and that he would be discharged tomorrow. He remained until an X-ray had been taken.

Calza began to weaken after Stecher had settled the heavyweight wrestling championship of the world in the first fall. Stecher won the second fall in two minutes and the third was one of the longest matches in ring history, lasting 1 hour, 40 minutes and 40 seconds.

GREAT HEINIE ZIM TO WED MILFORD GIRL

Milford, Mass., Aug. 3.—Whitey Heinie Zimmerman, veteran former star third baseman for the New York Giants, will be married, it is said, to Miss Ruth Legee, 21, of Milford.

Heinie is now a newspaper baseball writer, perhaps for the reason he played in the Giants-White Sox world series of 1917, when he caused Colonel Ruppert, owner of the Athletics, across the plate with the winning run by tempting an error from Joe Jackson's bare hand. The Fleetfooted Edgar won and so did the Athletics.

ANOTHER AMATEUR SHOW AT NANTASKET NEXT WEEK

Bathing Swimming at Nantasket will be afforded another chance to display a bathing suit next week. The Hull A.A. will stage an all-star boxing tournament in the ballroom at Nantasket beach Tuesday night, August 9.

The competition in classes as arranged for the bouts is the 115- and 147-pound classes. Entries for the tournament will close with Daniel Scott, Hull Post Office.

Bill Muldoon Says Chicago Ideal Spot for Bout

New York, Aug. 3.—William Muldoon of the New York State Athletic Commission when told that the Tunney-Dempsey championship bout was to be staged in Chicago said: "Their proposition must have been better than what New York could offer. Chicago is an ideal spot, centrally located." Commissioner Muldoon was "not regarding the commission's attitude toward Promoter Rickard as a consequence of taking the bout away from New York in the face of the interpretation the commission has placed on its minutes of June 30, that Rickard was under a binding agreement to bring the bout here.

JACK DEMPSEY Tells of Comeback

By JACK DEMPSEY.

(Copyright, 1927, King Features Syndicate, Inc.)

VERY often I've been asked:

"What are your thoughts immediately after the man you've knocked down has been counted out?"

And the answer is "they are always different."

I had a sort of strange one after that Sharkey fight.

And I can well, sometimes feel that last sensation.

I WENT over and got down on my knees and take him to his corner. As I grabbed him I said something that I've said a million times, and I've said a couple of times since. All of a sudden I got to thinking about my wife. I never was much on remembering sweets for him and the way my wife would be by my self-denials and how much it would mean to her if I could win the championship again. I guess I must have been thinking of her when I said:

"And after that—well, I sort of could get Mrs. Sharkey out of my mind for I knew how she must feel from knowing how broken hearted Sharkey would have felt if I hadn't made good on my promise.

"You see I started in to fight for my self-respect, but I finished fighting for the memory of my wife."

I had never said anything like that to Sharkey before. I had never said anything like that to any fighter before. I had never said anything like that to myself before. I had never said anything like that to my wife before.

I told my wife that I had said it to Sharkey. I told her that I had said it to myself. I told her that I had said it to Sharkey before. I told her that I had said it to myself before. I told her that I had said it to Sharkey before. I told her that I had said it to myself before.

Ice Cream Should Be Made With Care

By MARTHA LEE

"WHAT can be the matter?" asked a visitor in the Martha Lee Kitchen yesterday. "The directions I used the recipe you sent me for ice cream it came out as smooth and velvety as can be, but the second time it was grainy. What did I do that I shouldn't do?"

Which just goes to convince me that I am not entirely wrong in thinking that the making of ice cream is looked on by many housekeeper as a mere matter of chance. Sometimes the cream is smooth and velvety, and again, when they wish it to be especially good, it is coarse and grainy, even though the same recipe is used in both cases. The possibility of making an entirely good ice cream is within the reach of all if you follow correct methods.

The freezing mixture universally used in the home consists of common salt and finely crushed ice. While a proportion of one measure of ice to one of salt as been most generally used, we have found that much better results come in the freezing that the proportion of ice to salt consists of six measures of ice to one of salt.

Gives the most satisfactory results although for the first freezing it is slightly increased.

The ice should always be finely chopped, thereby permitting more rapid freezing. For good results use only the coarse freezing salt, not table salt.

The best method is to pack the freezer two-thirds full of ice before any salt is added. Then add the salt and ice in alternate layers. This gives you more chance to come in contact with the ice as it gradually sinks down. Measure the ice and salt just as accurately as you would the ingredients for a sponge cake, if you wish satisfactory and uniform results.

Thoroughly cool the mixture before it is put into the freezer. Turning the freezer while the mixture is warm often results in lumps of butter forming in the cream or on the dasher. A warm mixture also makes heavy demands on the ice and increases the freezing period.

Turn the freezer comparatively slowly for the first five or six minutes. At the first indication of freezing—that is, when the freezer begins to run harder—increase the speed to a lively rate and continue this speed until the freezing process is nearly complete.

This beating or whipping will tend to increase the volume of cream and separate more finely the freezing particles, producing an ice cream of smoother texture. The freezing can be somewhat hastened, especially in Winter, by the addition of a cupful of water to the ice and salt.

When frozen until quite stiff, ice cream becomes brittle and loses some of its swell. Follow the method used in the commercial manufacture of ice cream, stop turning and remove the dasher when the cream is of the consistency of thick white sauce or condensed milk. Pack and allow to ripen for several hours.

This period of standing allows time for the blending of all the flavors present, and helps to produce a firm, mellow body. It is, therefore, advisable to make ice cream early in the day.

There are two well-known types of ice cream, Philadelphia and American, and using these as a basis, many variations are possible. Philadelphia ice cream is made entirely of cream, used plain or all or part of the cream may be whipped. American ice cream is made with a custard foundation with some cream added. The proportion of cream to custard may be varied widely. One quart of thin cream to one pint of custard makes a very creamy mixture.

The custard is thickened with either two eggs, or one egg and one tablespoonful of flour; the amount of cream may be decreased and custard increased as desired. Using either of these as a basis, caramel, coffee, chocolate, or crushed fruit ice cream can be made. For children, the cream may be omitted in the American ice cream, and it can be served either with or without a fruit juice.

For caramel ice cream caramelize the sugar by heating it, constantly until dark brown, then stir in half the amount of boiling water, for one quart of mixture use one cupful of sugar, caramelizing one-half of it.

Make chocolate ice cream by melting two squares (2 ounces) of unsweetened chocolate over hot water. Add gradually one-fourth cupful of water and stir until smooth. Add to ice-cream mixture.

For coffee ice cream add one-third cupful freshly ground coffee to the milk before scalding, or in the case of Philadelphia ice cream, add to one-half of cream and scald. Strain through a fine sieve or several thicknesses of cheese cloth.

Faithfully yours,

Martha Lee

TO CLEAN WHITE PAINT

Have a piece of perfectly clean flannel and a pail of warm water and some whitening. Wring the flannel out of the water, dip it into the whitening, and rub the paint with it until the dirt disappears. Wash it again with clean water, rub dry with a soft cloth, and give a final polish with a piece of clean canton flannel. This does not injure the paint, as strong soap or cleaning powder does, but gives it a freshness and gloss.

Drawer That Sticks.

When a drawer sticks and refuses to be pulled out or pushed in, most people plane the top of the wood. This is wrong, for the reason the drawer sticking is that the wood has expanded owing to dampness. A drawer that has been planed, when it is again dry will contract too much and lose its dust proof qualities. The proper cure is to rub the top edges of the drawer with beeswax or paraffin. The drawer will never stick again.

Do you know this trick?

Many a cooking problem can be triumphantly solved by this simple method:

Whenever a recipe calls for both milk and sugar, use Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk. Expert professional cooks enthusiastically recommend its use. They have found that Standard Milk gives finer results with less trouble and expense. It cuts down butter and eggs in desserts and hot breads. It makes a remarkably economical mayonnaise that thickens beautifully and won't separate. It is splendid for ice cream—cake icings, pie fillings—candies.

Now you'll want to know why Standard Milk does all this. Stop and think a moment just what this milk is. A delicious blend of pure, fresh, full-cream country milk and finest sugar. Super-rich! Why? Because most of the water has been removed, leaving the percentage of butter fat twice as high as in ordinary milk. (Bottled milk is 87% water.)

You'll find that Standard Milk is also super-smooth. That's because the sugar is blended in more perfectly than you could possibly do it at home. As a result, dishes made with Standard Milk show more perfect texture and consistency . . . Watch this space for delightful recipes. And write to the Borden Company, 350 Madison Ave., New York, for "Condensed Milk and its Uses in Good Cookery"—a complete recipe booklet.

Here's another hint for adding deliciousness and decreasing expense: Use Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk in your coffee! It creams-and-sugars, richly, perfectly, at one-half the cost of separate cream and sugar. And with Standard Milk there's never any waste from spoiling. It keeps pure and fresh and rich for days after the can is opened—even without ice . . . Get Standard Sweetened Condensed Milk at your grocer's today!

Women's Work and Place in This Life

By Chas A. L. Reed, M. D., Former President of the American Medical Association.

WHAT is women's real work?

The answer to this question must be found in the natural law that makes women women.

Women like men must recognize their natural physiological limitation.

I don't say that the conventions, customs, or even the statutes are just guides or expressions of the natural law in the case. But that the problem, in its last analysis, is one of natural law is beyond doubt.

In the meantime, however, we must consider the question as it comes up in every day of life.

The competition of women with men in industry and the consequent reduction in men's earnings and standards of living, says Fenton, is one of the most serious drawbacks today to the welfare and happiness of the race. Husbands and fathers find their wages undercut and their wives have to give up their working-days. The houses are neglected, the children suffer and the next generation is hampered still further than this one.

What is the remedy?

Many women are doing work for which they are not fitted, but to right-ful position, in command of the home.

Suppose a committee of the most enlightened men and women in the land were intrusted with the absolute control of the national life. They would certainly begin by advising that as many men and women as possible should marry. Provided the partner is suitable a normal life of the happiest state of existence for adult persons of both sexes. The young men of today recognize this well enough and most of those who are able to support a wife marry accordingly.

Story of Love and Intrigue: A Girl Who Kept Her Head and a Tiger Woman

CHAPTER XLIII.

THE "swish" little frock and cloak Eddie selected for Gladys arrived at its destination by special messenger before he did. At first she thought it must be a mistake, but there was the name plain enough upon the pasted label on the modiste's box "Miss Gladys Flack Fragile. Handle with care."

Gladys undid the wrappings, holding her breath.

Within the soft folds of tissue paper reposed an evening dress in creation that looked as if fairies had fashioned it out of mist and moonbeams; and beneath it divided by yet more layers of paper, lay a cloak to wear with it, ebony and satiny and trimmed with a huge collar and flounce of soft white fur.

Gladys lifted up the two lovely garments with trembling fingers. They were as beautiful as poems. They thrilled and sang to her. She unfastened the press-studs of her shabby little day dress and slipped the mist and moonbeams over her head.

Pale pink geraniums bloomed in her cheeks and a deeper shade incarnadined her parted lips. . . . Exciting restored the vitality and color she had lost.

She looked like a reviving bloom that has been deprived of water and once more finds itself supplied with the necessities of flower life.

Over it all she slipped the cloak, very light, delicously warm—much warmer than it looked. . . . Its huge collar framed the delicate oval of her little face. . . . She had not lost her looks . . . They were coming back every one of her pretty charms, like Mary's little lost lambs . . . She hardly recognized herself in the glass.

In the midst of it her landlady put in a timorous head.

"Oh, look, Mrs Hilton!" Gladys cried "Someone must have sent me a present! I can't think who it can be! They've come—this dress and this cloak! I had to put them on!"

"There's a young gentleman waiting on the mat downstairs, askin to see you. Perhaps he knows something about them," suggested the woman "Shall I ask him up?"

"Oh, no! I mean, yes! Has he come to take the things away again? I was afraid it was a mistake. I oughtn't to have tried them on—"

"I'll bring 'im up, if should think e was more likely to be an angel on, from what I can see, opined the woman "If don't look as if a in the drapery line. I must say 'E's the dead spit of some actor I've seen on the films—not Rudolph Valentino or Harnon Navarro but some one with a foreign name that was in London last year, and the Lord Mayor came out to meet im"

"Do You Mean Pedro Lorezzo?" She Said

Gladys heart began to beat fast. Her thoughts flew to Eddie at once.

"Do you mean Pedro Lorezzo?" she said "Then—it's a friend of mine who's very like him a Mr Winden. Oh please ask him in!"

Eddie came up at once.

For a moment he stood on the threshold of Gladys' room, contemplating the fairy Princess.

"Is it really you?" he exclaimed "Don't you look a dream. I knew that frock and cloak would suit you. I picked them out at once! I saw you in them in my mind's eye, only you look fifty times sweeter still! I thought you said you'd altered?"

"So I have," she faltered; "only these clothes are so lovely! It's the dress which

BOOK REVIEW
Flares from "Mame," the Masterpiece of Ire and Beauty, 1903.

It was at the Sunday school picnic that people started making cracks about Maun La Feile and her orphan cousin, Ivy Montane—but as a matter of fact, most of the gossip was sounded. We have the author's word for it that—

Free and Informative these picnics, yet
Maurine had no sight of flirt-

ing, Roy was just
Like some dear brother, Many a time
When there was some steep mountain able to climb
And she grew weary, he would say: "Maurine,
Come rest you here." And she would do and lean
Her head upon his shoulder, or would stand
And let him hold in his her willing hand,
And with he he stroked it gently with his own,
Or she would let him clasp her with his arm,
Nor entertained a thought of any harm.
Or e'en suspicious. But ere long the truth
She learned in consternation! Both Aunt Ruth
And Helen, honestly, in faith believed
That Roy and she were lovers.
On Helen's face there came a look ethereal,
As if she dwelt above the things material.
It seems like sweet, kind-hearted Maurine, no matter what she did, was misunderstood. If she happened to be found caring her head on some young fellow's shoulders, folks would talk. And you know how tough that is for a girl in a small town. Oh, well! Tomorrow maybe they'll understand tomorrow.

DAILY SHORT STORY

JOE TUCKER was not at all pleased when two machines pulled off the narrow, rutty, dirt road and made camp near his own that last night of the three-day holiday. For Joe's favorite fishing pools were a scant quarter-mile up Pescadore Creek.

Nevertheless, after they had eaten their evening meal, and the dishes had been washed by the three women in the party, the four men sat down to play pinochle. A camp lamp placed on top of an auto provided light.

A dog belonging to one of the party, stalked about the campfire and nervously barked at slight sunds. And despite the loud insistence of two of them that they liked to fish, the four men continued to play cards until 1 o'clock in the morning.

Joe got up at 5 a. m., as he planned, but he felt water-logged for lack of sleep. The other two anglers were wrapped in slumber. A cleverly-tossed rock jerked the dog out of his sleep by the dying fire. He let out a series of yaps that at once set a strummer going down the trail, tore around and through the two tents, barking like mad. Explosive words and mild screams told of rude awakenings.

"That ought to cwan the score," Joe told himself. "Maybe they'll go to bed tonight at a decent time."

Three hours later Joe returned to his camp. Great luck and wonderful sunshine had changed his mood. Eleven fine trout rested in the bag-

ket at his hip. More than he could possibly eat!

A big man with an engaging smile stood there as he approached.

"Lo, pardner, what luck?"

It was the fellow with the booming voice, the one who had kept a [illegible]

Somehow Joe returned evenly, "Caught num dandies."

He opened the basket and allowed the man to look.

"Mother of Moses!" breathed the other in admiration. "Sure wish I had got up in time to try my luck."

"Try going to bed earlier!" Joe snapped a little tartly.

"Well, I guess I like playing pinochle better than anything else," the big one admitted. "And we had a fine game last night." He suddenly looked serious. "By the way, I'm sorry if we kept you awake. Jove! I never thought."

"That's all right," Joe growled. "Forget it."

"You can join us tonight in a game."

"Another friend," Joe answered. "Now I'll make a bargain with you. Close down your camp at 10 o'clock tonight and go to bed; promise to do that and I'll give you enough of these fish for your breakfast."

"The others will be wild," the big man protested. "If I eat fish and they don't have any."

"[illegible]

That should be enough for four outfit—including the kids!"

"I see enough," came the answer. "But we must get acquainted. My name's Thorne. Tom Thorne."

Ten minutes later Joe had met Mrs. Thorne, Phyllis, aged twenty, and Ruth Thorne, nineteen. Also J. Parker Day and his wife, and a young fellow by the name of Bill Thorne, who was with the Day party, but it seemed deeply interested in [illegible]

Joe had not known Ruth half an hour before he subconsciously decided to give Phillips a little competition. For the girl was daintily formed, pretty, with just a hint of red in her blonde hair; she had the sort of poise that indicated character. Oh, she was no mere doll, for all her baby-like face.

When she commented on his "catch" of the morning, Joe declared gaily:

"Let me teach you how to fish. It's great sport."

"But it's brutal."

"You ate the fish," Joe countered.

"That's different," growled Ed Phillips. "After a poor fish is dead he doesn't care what happens to him."

Tom Thorne laughed noisily. "Believe me," he boomed, "trout are tricky game fish, Izaak Walton calls them the 'generous' fish. Maybe they are. But they're generous only to themselves."

"A person has to prove a lot smarter than they are or he won't eat trout," Joe agreed. "As for our friend here"—he nodded toward Phillips—"I think we could give him about five dollars for every fish he'd catch, and not lose a cent. How about it, Mr. Thorne?"

"Righto. He couldn't even catch a cold"—

"I assure you I'm not going to try such a thing," Phillips declared angrily.

"Ah! Why not, Ed?" questioned young Bill Thorne. "We might waste ten minutes baiting a poor sucker."

Ruth Thorne looked at the two young fellows and smiled. "I think I can catch more fish than the two of you put together," she turned to Joe. "That is, with your help," she added.

"The pleasure is all mine," Joe returned gallantly.

"When do I take the first lesson?"

"At twilight this evening."

"How romantic!" Ed Phillips said, and sneered.

"Isn't it?" exclaimed Mrs. Day who had failed to grasp the double meaning in the other's words.

Late that afternoon Joe led the way along the trail to his favorite pools. Occasionally it was necessary for him to help Ruth over a bit of treacherous footing. Once when the girl slipped and Joe caught her to prevent a possible fall, the contact of her body sent his blood leaping and left him thinking of many things other than trout.

Tom Thorne and J. Parker Day followed the couple, the former as noisy as a school boy, the latter quiet as the proverbial lamb.

The others remained in camp; the woman talking, Bill Thorne playing a "pet" mouth organ, and Ed Phillips sulking in his tent with a mythical headache.

At length the fishing party halted [illegible] pool a nitrogen[illegible] body of water almost lost in the shadow of green trees.

"Mr. Thorne, you go up near the [illegible] Joe directed. "Mr. Day, cross over on that fallen tree [illegible] from behind the big rock [illegible] Miss Thorne and I will try our luck from this overhanging bank."

Very quickly and quietly, fishing operations began. Joe baited a hook for Ruth and explained how she was to hold the pole to best advantage.

Tom Thorne made a "strike" but in his eagerness to be first to land a fish, he broke his line.

Rose started to protest at her father's language. But Joe hurriedly placed his hand over her mouth, then slipped it down over her hand and the pole. A snappy twist and the trout which had "rooted" her bait, was hooked.

The reel sang as the fish tore down stream. Joe kept a tight hold on the pole, using his thumb as "drag."

"Now," he directed the girl. "Try winding him."

Obediently the girl, using her right hand, began to reel in the fish.

"He pulls like a little bull," she said, her voice husky in excitement.

"Let him run again," Joe ordered "or he'll break the line."

Then, after a second reeling in Joe explained: "Now you swing him up to the bank and I'll get him."

The swinging up process worked all right. But the instant the trout struck solid ground, he bounced around vigorously, managed a twist off the hook, and plunged back into the pool, leaving Joe grabbing for thin air.

"Wasn't—wasn't he brave!" Ruth exclaimed while [illegible] Day, cross over on that fallen tree [illegible] from behind the big rock [illegible] Miss Thorne and I will try our luck from this overhanging bank."

Joe nodded agreement. So long as the girl would let him hold her hand, fishing could go long.

"Ruth is a beautiful name," Joe said after a little silence. "But Thorne—"

"I suppose you'll be wanting me to change it," Ruth returned, and laughed. Then she realized the implication her words might convey, and she blushed prettily.

"I wouldn't be a bit surprised," Joe said very earnestly.

About 10 o'clock that night, while Joe was holding Ruth's hand and pretending for the thirty-fourth time to read her fortune, much to Ed Phillips' disgust, Tom Thorne looked toward the young man and said:

"I was thinking of proposing a game of pinochle, but we fishermen must go to bed early."

Joe reddened in surprise as he recalled the bargain of the morning.

"No. No. Go right ahead with your game, Mr. Thorne," he argued. "You like to play pinochle and I've had about enough fishing for the trip."

"That's what I thought," said Tom Thorne, maliciously.

THE WITTY SAYINGS OF MEDBURY

By JOHN P. MEDBURY

THE new prohibition administrator claims that New York city is the wettest spot in the United States. There are only three places in the whole town where you can't get a drink, and two of them are closed.

THE cocktail shaker is the leading musical instrument.

THE number of people who live in Manhattan is astounding. In fact, the population is staggering.

ALCOHOL is so plentiful that thousands of housewives are even washing the dishes in gin.

A MAN fainted in a night club the other evening and they had to send out for a glass of water.

SCOTCH is so easy to get that people don't have to bother the revenue agents any more.

MOST speak-easies close at 5 o'clock in the morning. If a man isn't intoxicated by that time, he isn't trying.

THERE are very few hard drinkers in New York. It comes easy to them now.

THE 18th Amendment has given them lots of opportunity for practice.

ONE bootlegger tried to make arrangements with the police department the other day. He wanted to deliver his orders in the patrol wagon.

THE rum-running boats are so thick in New York Bay that they're crowding the battleships out of the harbor.

EVERY time the fleet wants to visit Manhattan, Uncle Sam has to park half of the navy in Maryland.

A BROOKLYN moonshiner tried to rent the Statue of Liberty. He wanted to use it for a still.

LIQUOR is so plentiful around the East that people from Canada are even spending their vacations in New York.

ANT tourist who can't locate a blind pig in fifteen minutes has no ambition.

THE government should deport him before he becomes a public charge.

THE prohibition law will be repealed sooner or later. Give the Anti-Saloon League enough water and they'll drown themselves.

RHYMING OPTIMIST

By ALINE MICHAELIS

THERE'S are so many selves in every man that none can say which facet shows most truth, the sober being of life's later span or that bright self aglow with golden youth. So many selves, and which is you or I, the self that hates and schemes, the self that flaunts hope's banners in the sky, the happy self that only drifts and dreams? There is that sullen self of darkest mood who sometimes as a stranger inters in, the self that no man ever understood, the baser self that leads to strife and sin. There is the shining self that lifts the thought to all things noble, all things fine and high, the self by whom life's greatest deeds are wrought. So many selves, and which is you or I?

A WIFE'S MEDITATIONS

By ELLEN ROWLAND

A NEW heart-interest, like a new pair of bi-focals, always spoils a man's eyes for the old ones.

* * *

A man's single-blessedness depends, not so much on his ability to keep from falling in love, as on his ability in catching his balance.

* * *

What do Americans want with HOMES? They are born in hospitals, do their courting in motor-cars, spend their days in business offices, their nights in night-clubs, their winters in Florida, their summers in Europe and are buried from an undertaking parlor!

* * *

Most of his life a man is either trying to find a woman who interests him, or trying to escape from one who bores him.

* * *

It is almost as much of a feat to persuade a man to GO home before you marry him, as it is to persuade him to STAY home after you marry him.

* * *

Knowledge is power—but a married woman's happiness depends chiefly on the number of things she doesn't know, and isn't curious enough to inquire about.

* * *

A woman has been granted a divorce because her husband spent more time, money and enthusiasm on his yacht than he did on his home. But, dear me, if the same grounds applied to motor-cars, we should all be gasoline-widows tomorrow!

* * *

Never can I meet what he loves you; because by the time he has found the reason, he will probably have lost the enthusiasm. Anyway, if a man doesn't love you without reason, he doesn't love you at all!

Home Hints

To clean and polish an ebony piano place a few drops of good olive oil on a piece of warm flannel and rub over gently with this. Finish with a clean soft chamois leather.

A grease mark on velveteen can be removed by dropping some turpentine on the spot and rubbing it quite dry with a piece of clean flannel. Brush well afterward.

When starch has adhered to an iron rub on salt spread on a sheet of newspaper.

When making jellies in warm weather it is as well to use a little less than the specified quantity of hot water. The jelly will then set somewhat more quickly and firmly.

Blankets will be soft and fleecy-looking after washing if they are beaten when quite dry with a carpet-beater.

To remove finger marks from mahogany, wring a cloth out in clean, cold water, rub gently and polish with a piece of velvet.

Coward Hour Greets Boston

As an honor program for the new store, the Coward Shoe Company presents its first radio broadcast tomorrow evening at 7:30 from WEEI. Coward Shoes come to Boston in the opening of the new store on August 15 at 20 West street, corner of Mason street.

Heretofore the programs have been heard only from station WEAF, New York, and this evening and on subsequent Thursday evenings will be heard from WEEI, WCSH, WTIC, WTAG and WJAR.

1—Boston Welcome Song.

2—"Dear Old Boston" (vocal), favorite song of ex-Mayor Curley.

3—"Chimes of Trinity" (written in memory of Boston's Trinity Church.

4—"Listen to the Mocking Bird" (vocal).

5—"Oh, That We Two Were Maying."

7:45—Announcement.

6—"Blue Danube Waltz," the favorite song of Governor Fuller.

7—"Last Night the Nightingale Woke Me" (vocal).

8—Medley of favorite Boston songs: 1—"Sweet Adeline," favorite song of ex-Mayor Fitzgerald; 2—"Bells of St. Mary's"; 3—"If She Comes from Old New England She's a Grand Old Girl."

9—Medley of college songs of Massachusetts Tech, Boston University, Harvard College, Tufts College.

10—Hymn (which always closes the Coward Comfort Hour).

Radio Dialog

By C. WILLIAM RADOS

Directions on how to reach tonight's fight. First purchase an adequate radio installation including new tubes, antenna, and new suit for self that wife has been telling you for the last three months. (This last has nothing to do with radio but it helps business and will allow you to listen to the fight instead of your wife.)

Then have a dollar bill ready to insert in the loud speaker when Tex says so. Arrange to have a peanut and soda pop merchant about every time the announcer says anything important. Last but not least, instead of going to bed, stand out in front of your car while somebody boots the horn for a few hours. This will be almost as good as taking the subway home.

Oliver Aspirin, who receives his tax notice but never has paid) from East Castoria, says Rickard's idea is fine but. The BUT is will Tex Rickard reduce static? Will Tex Rickard eliminate fading? Will Tex Rickard eliminate interference? Will Tex Rickard do these things and we will all pay.

* * *

The greatest of these say Mr. Aspirin, is will Rickard change my wife so that just when the important part is on she will not tune to some musical reverie or something like that.

VETERAN ANNOUNCER AT RADIO TRADE DINNER

New York, Aug. 3.—Major J. Andrew White, veteran radio announcer, will act as master of ceremonies for the fourth annual radio industries banquet to be held at the Astor Hotel in New York on September 21, the week of the New York Radio World's Fair, according to announcement by Paul B. Klugh, general chairman of the committee in charge of this annual radio festival. More than sixty broadcasters will carry the program from the banquet to listeners throughout the country.

MEXICAN FILM ACTRESS IN CONTRACT ROW

By LOUELLA O. PARSONS.

LOS ANGELES, Aug. 3.—A storm center of heated controversy is about to center around the film activities of Lureta Veldez, Mexican actress, shortly to make her screen debut as Douglas Fairbanks' leading woman in "The Gaucho."

Lureta was brought to Hollywood from Mexico City through the efforts of Frank Woodyard, who engaged her to play the lead in the stage production of "The Dove." She reached here ten days late and in the meantime, Dorothy Mackaye was given the part. Later, Mr. Woodyard signed her on a contract to appear in Hal Roach comedies. She was borrowed from Mr. Roach for the Fairbanks' picture.

Miss Velez, according to Woodyard, now seeks to break her contract, alleging she was under age at the time it was signed. He responds by saying she was born February 6, 1902, which would make her eighteen years of age at the time the contract was signed with him last March.

GEORGE JESSEL is out to conquer new movie fields. He was happy enough at Warner Brothers studios when Jolson happened on the scene and was signed to play "The Jazz Singer." After that, the Warner studios was never home to him. But Mr. Jessel has movie ambitions, so he went out and signed a contract with Lewis Gensler of Small, Rogers & Company. He will make two pictures, "Ginsberg of Harvard," and "George Washington Cohen."

THE chances of Dorothy Mackaill and Jack Mulhall separating as a motion picture team, in a movie Dot and Jack will be told, begin work immediately on "Man Crazy," based on "Clarion of the Post Road," by Grace Sartwell Mason.

VACUUM OIL declared extra dividend of 50 cents, payable Sept. 20.

THE PULLMAN COMPANY
DIVIDEND No. 247

A quarterly dividend (No. 247) of two dollars per share will be paid August 15th, 1927, to stockholders of record at the close of business July 30th, 1927.

F. E. RANK,
Secretary.

Chicago, July 1, 1927.

STOCKS SLUMP, THEN RALLY

There were varying opinions as to the ultimate market effect, but a rather unanimous agreement that it had injected politics into the market months earlier than had been expected.

From a stock market standpoint, "presidential years" have been traditionally conservative because of political uncertainties, although the current "bull" movement, familiarly referred to as the "Coolidge market," began in the Summer of 1924, when the President's stand was a foregone conclusion in Wall Street.

Offerings appeared to come largely from pools and professional traders who have been sponsoring the recent advance. So-called public participation in the market has been on a small scale in recent months, according to leading commission houses, with the bulk of speculative activity in high-priced issues which do not appeal to the small speculator because of the large margin required on carrying them.

Opening prices, as a rule, registered the extreme declines. The subsequent rally undoubtedly was stimulated by short covering of professional "shorts," who sold stocks freely at the opening, and by the appearance of strong banking support after the big slump in issues.

Dupont, which opened 15¾ points lower at $26, rallied to a new high record for all time at 299 before the end of the first hour.

AUTO TRADE OUTLOOK IS CONSIDERED GOOD

New York, Aug. 3 (A.P.).—Leading executives of the automobile industry are inclined to view with optimism the new automobile year, which began August 1, with the introduction of new models. Manufacturers consider that expected larger replacement and export business and delayed buying due to uncertainty of Ford production make prospects bright. The automobiles "year," closed July 31, was not as good as that preceding, production being estimated at 3,850,000 vehicles, against 4,339,338 for the previous year, but it is considered certain that production this year will exceed that of the year just ended and may equal if not exceed the best previous year.

THE BOSTON AMERICAN'S PLATFORM FOR BOSTON AND NEW ENGLAND

For BOSTON: 1—Clean streets.
2—Solution of traffic and parking problems.
3—Better pay for honest public service.
4—An airport SECOND TO NONE.
5—Erection of a MUNICIPAL AUDITORIUM to compare with any in the land; in order that Boston, properly supplied with first-class hotelnay be the premier convention city of the U. S. A.

For NEW ENGLAND: 1—Weld the six States into a unit through the activities of the New England Council, thus creating a community consciousness.
2—Promote intercourse with Central and South America, encouraging New Englanders to "turn to the sea" again.
3—Keeping everlastingly at the job of telling the rest of the country all about our unique advantages as Summer and Winter Playground of the Nation.
4—Foster the prosperity of our industries through (1) greater efficiency in production and (2) the use of modern methods in merchandising.
5—Promote in every way such natural resources as forests, water powers and fisheries.
6—Assist New England agriculture to better marketing methods.

France Wants to Collect But Not to Pay Her Debts

Andre Tardieu, French High Commissioner to the United States during the war and now a member of the Poincare Cabinet, gave an interview to a Washington magazine last week, saying that the French-American debt agreement is dead.

He went on to say that no French Parliament would think of ratifying the Berenger-Mellon agreement, whereby France is to pay us 50 cents on the dollar on the three billion dollars that we loaned to her during the war.

Tardieu now repudiates the interview, seeing the storm it raised in this country. No well-informed person doubts that he actually said just what he was quoted as saying by Merle Thorpe, editor of Nation's Business, the official organ of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States.

It is just what Tardieu says in his book, published earlier this year, entitled "France and America." The whole book is an argument for debt cancellation. On page 243, speaking of the growing estrangement between France and America since the war, he says:

"Between us there was but one business tie—a dead and putrid tie—our debts."

The friendship between the American and the French people is not involved in this matter. The French people have a right to feel shame, as we feel contempt, for Andre Tardieu.

What does the man say in his own book about what we did for his country when it was at the point of death? Read this, on page 216:

"In less than eighteen months the United States armed itself to the teeth; its army grew from 190,000 to more than 5,000,000 (two million actually landed in France); its output of war material increased 300 per cent.; its shipping increased from 2,000,000 to 6,000,000 tons; IT SPENT $33,000,000,000 (NEARLY $3,000,000 AN HOUR)."

How useful to France were these three thousand million dollars that we borrowed from our people and advanced to the French Government against their solemn promise to repay? This is what Tardieu says:

"Without means of payment in dollars—and since November, 1916, such means of payment had been lacking—the Allies would have been beaten before the end of 1917. America's entry into the war saved them. Before the American soldier, the American dollar turned the tide."

Would they have done as much for us? Tardieu himself says NO (page 127):

"In our heart of hearts we often ask ourselves whether, had the roles been reversed, had France been neutral and the United States invaded, we should have done as much for them as they were doing for us."

What are the words in the English or the French language to characterize the man who does not want his land to pay this debt even after we have scaled it down to fifty cents on the dollar?

Next year France will be getting from Germany, as war reparations, 52 per cent. of the German annual payment of $625,000,000. That is, France will be getting from Germany $325,000,000 a year. Tardieu says that no French Parliament would ratify the Berenger-Mellon agreement, which obligates France to pay us $30,000,000 a year, in the early years of the agreement.

That is, Tardieu says that it is impossible to consider giving us even one-tenth of the war indemnity collected from Germany, though he admits that without our help, Germany would now be collecting indemnity from France.

It is hoped that these incidents are teaching our people determination to keep out of foreign wars that are none of our business.

If America is really learning this lesson, the price has not been too high.

Rich New Dish Added

Improving the Menu for the Movie Fans

Far more important than the announcement of a new newspaper or new newspaper chain, is the announcement of a new newsreel service.

The Chinese say that a picture is worth 10,000 words. It is a question whether the public gets as much information about a current event from the newspapers as they get from the newsreels thrown on the screen.

The Hearst organization, which now issues one of the most popular newsreels in the country, the International Newsreel, announces the inauguration of another such service, to be known as the M-G-M News, which makes its bow to the public in leading motion theatres throughout the country this week. The M-G-M News will be gathered and issued by the Hearst News Service, Inc., and will be released by the Metro-Goldwyn-Mayer Distributors' Corporation.

Thanks to the newsreels, stay-at-homes really saw more of the Lindbergh, Chamberlin, Byrd, Maitland, Hegenberger and Smith-Bronte flights than any person who actually viewed one small scene in hopoff, landing or jubilant celebration. The movie theatregoer saw the whole proceedings from start to finish.

Now the movie fans, in M-G-M News, covering both news and special features, have another rich dish added to their menu.

Women May Get Right of Way on Roads -:- By Franklin Collier

GETTING TO KNOW THE WEST

By DR. FRANK CRANE

PRESIDENT COOLIDGE is making Dakota his Summer home.

In this, as in other respects, he has shown his good sense.

What the people of the East need is a good dose of the West. You do not strike the true American spirit till you have crossed the Alleghanies. The East is too much under the dominance of European ideas.

Lincoln and Grant were both Western products, and Theodore Roosevelt had much of his training in the West.

President Coolidge comes from New England stock, and all his life has been spent in that locality. He needs to know the West and to become immersed in it, as it is that part of the country that controls the United States.

It is the West that has put over prohibition, and the East has never quite understood it or become reconciled to it.

The West is not strong on a man's ancestry, his pull or his influence. They gauge everything by what a man does.

They don't even let a man keep his own name. When he walks into a Western camp, he is dubbed "Slim Jim" and he never can get away from his cognomen. It doesn't matter what name his mother gave him.

Perhaps the President of the United States need not come from the West, but it will do him a great deal of good if he understands the West and knows what sort of things it stands for.

The boys from Kansas and Iowa acquitted themselves wonderfully in the late unpleasantness, and Lindbergh and Chamberlin are Western products.

The West believes in doing things!

This is not an attempt to pit the West against the East, nor to praise the West and disparage the East. Both have their place. But the West is the place where true Americanism is rampant. Out West there are Americans and nothing but; in fact, all the original romance we have in this country is the fast fading romance of the West. Theodore Roosevelt owed much of his vogue to his strong popularity in the West, and no President can expect to retain his hold upon the popular mind unless somehow he fires the imagination of the West.

Although Mr. Coolidge is an Eastern man and a product of New England, he has many qualities which the West admires, and to become better acquainted with the West will both increase their confidence in the President and the security of his position in the hearts of the people.

BOSTON DAY BY DAY

ALL Bostonians are not so worldly wise when it comes to dealing with men who ought to be behind the bars. Up in the general vicinity of Arlington square was a hard-working storekeeper with $10,000 destined to return to the old country some day. But a man, out of work, found out how much money the storekeeper had and decided to keep it here.

* * *

Such occurrences are common because some people are hesitant to trust their money to banks. Gangs thrive on such victims, whose innocence is their downfall.

One man sent his brother in Canada $400, only to be held up as soon as he crossed the border into the United States.

* * *

In one day, as we strolled along, we saw Professor Norbert Weiner, one of the leading mathematicians of the country, and James M. Curley, also good at statistics and credits.

* * *

Then came Joseph A. Erickson, another banker, quick and genial. We kept going; not many days like this. More great and near great crossed our path, among them Elliot Wadsworth and Superintendent Crowley.

* * *

Down around Haymarket square one sees those shops handling bottling and brewers' supplies. No mention is made of prohibited beverages in the signs naively bearing such descriptions as "Bottle cappers," "malt extracts," "chemical apparatus." You the clerk tells you that one owner recently opened two branch stores in other [illegible]'s towns.

* * *

What the breweries lost, the soda fountains gained. One uptown polished fountain gets twenty-five cents for a lemon and lime. They are all crowded at various times of the day and one of them, most popular of all, possibly, takes in around $20,000 a week.

LISTEN, WORLD!

By ELSIE ROBINSON

JUDGE LINDSEY started it.

While the rest of us gasped and gossiped about the carryings-on of the Younger Set, the Children's Judge stood up and cried—

"This is no passing road show—this is a tremendous revolution going on before your very noses. Here is Youth in Revolt—the Youth which won the war for you, now able to pay its own way and determined to make its own code. You can't bind it any longer by the code which belonged to an older, vanished order. You can't make these children act as their grandparents did, for they aren't living in the same world. What are you going to do about it?

Then Judge Lindsey suggested Companionate Marriage as a preliminary, but perfectly legal union, for those who were bent on mating but were not mature enough to undertake the responsibility of a family.

And promptly the World and his wife jumped on Judge Ben Lindsey and said he was a bad, bad man.

Next came young Reverend Henry Lewis, fresh from his work with Ann Arbor college students, and declared in his church conference—

New Standards.

I, too, find these conditions. I find them not only among the lawless young people, but also amongst the young people who should be in time our finest citizens. The old laws and traditions won't fit the conditions of their lives. They demand new standards. If we don't help them make new standards, they'll make them for themselves with infinite waste and suffering. The church must act at this crisis or lose its hold over young people forever."

And pronto every one forgot Judge Lindsey and armed against this reckless young pastor.

Most bitter of all is Bishop Manning of New York. The very thought that the church should have an "open mind" on modern problems makes the good bishop froth with horror.

"There's only one standard of right and wrong," cries Bishop Manning. "It has existed since the beginning of the church and it must endure until the end. There can be no tampering with it—compromise is damnable."

"Not so," says Rabbi Newman of San Francisco, leader of the older and more conservative Mosaic faith.

"Religion will flourish as a progressive force only if its leaders frankly utter what is in their hearts. We may not agree with the expressed opinions of Reverend Henry Lewis, Reverend William N. Guthrie of Reverend J. Howard Melish, but they have awakened widespread comment by their fearless interpretation of modern economic, social and religious conditions. They have seen fit to challenge established traditions and we are pleased to see it."

Battle Always On.

So the battle is on. Indeed it has always been on.

The first cave man filching his fire from a volcano to warm his cave and cook his food, against the horrified protests of his fellows—

Jesus Christ defying the Sanhedrin, preaching a new faith to the beggars by the road—

Columbus steering his bark toward the setting sun—

White men battling against each other that a black man might be freed—

American women clamoring for a vote — Turkish women discarding the veils—

Joan of Arc.

Pasteur. Edison. Marconi—

They all fought the Battle of The Open Mind. They all said that the Old Way wasn't good enough—that it was time for new and greater things—

We applaud them now, but most of them were martyred in their time. Which side will you take as the battle goes on?
